Duo to review BNC progress

President Advocate Duma Boko (right) being seen off to Namibia by Vice President Ndaba Gaolathe (left), Permanent Secretary to the President, Ms Emmah Peloetletse (second left) and other senior government officials at Sir Seretse Khama International Airport in Gaborone yesterday. President Boko is in Windhoek to attend the second session of the Botswana-Namibia Bi-National Commission scheduled for today. According to a press release from Office of the President, the session will review progress made in the implementation of commitments made during the inaugural session of the Botswana-Namibia BNC held in Gaborone in September 2022. The Bi-National Commission serves as the highest-level bilateral framework for cooperation between the two countries, aimed at strengthening economic, political and social relations through the coordinated implementation of jointly agreed programmes and projects. While in Namibia, President Boko attended a street naming dedication ceremony in honour of Botswana's founding president, Sir Seretse Khama. Former president, Lt Gen. Seretse Khama Ian Khama also attended the ceremony and delivered an acceptance speech on behalf of the Khama family. President Boko is expected back home today. Photo: Pheny Moalosi

‘Entrepreneurs function indispensable’

By Lesedi Thatayamodimo

GABORONE - Investors, mentors, policymakers and leaders have been called to recognise and support entrepreneurs as Botswana’s most vital form of human capital. Speaking at a demo presentation session hosted by MIT Kuo Sharper Centre for Prosperity and Entrepreneurship in collaboration with Botswana Innovation Hub (BIH) in Gaborone on Tuesday, Vice President Ndaba Gaolathe said their role was indispensable and that they should be recognised.

Work with them, fund them, mentor them, advocate for them in driving Botswana forward and to attain the deliverables of the Botswana Economic Transformation Programme (BETP), Mr Gaolathe said.

Mr Gaolathe, who is also the Minister of Finance, said young people were not participants in the global dialogue but were authors and the living embodiment of Botswana’s true north, highlighting the need to nurture the entrepreneurial nature of the youth in realising national sustainable economic goals.

Reflecting on a recent visit to Cambridge University, he shared his admiration for African youth shaping global conversations.

“At Cambridge, I witnessed our continent’s finest young thinkers framing the future not as something to be waited for, but something to be built, their courage reminds me that the power of Botswana’s transformation lies not in our resources, but in our resolve,” he said.

He therefore, placed Botswana’s youth at the centre of economic and societal transformation, emphasising that their ideas, energy and leadership were the real drivers of long-term progress for Botswana’s future.

“Let us build a digitally enabled, an export-driven and economically diversified Botswana, a Botswana that is not only the best managed economy on the African continent, but a paragon of inclusive prosperity,” said Mr Gaolathe acknowledging that Botswana’s greatest wealth had never been in diamonds, nor land but the people.

Mr Gaolathe emphasised that the young entrepreneurs presenting were doing more than launching companies but helping to reshape Botswana’s identity.

“They are building confidence, they are building community, they are building a new national identity,” he said.

Sharing the same sentiments, Debswana chief operations officer, Mr Koolatotse Koolatotse also talked about the disadvantage of relying on a single commodity for revenue.

“The question on everyone’s mind is what will happen if diamonds revenue wane,” he said.

Mr Koolatotse embraced the initiative, to strive to export skilled labour or globally competitive product or service to the outside world.

MIT Kuo Sharper Centre executive director, Ms Dina Sherif for her part, said Demo Day was a declaration that Botswana’s transformation was not theoretical.

Ms Sherif said at the heart of the event were 31 exceptional entrepreneurs, selected from over 1 300 applicants, whose passion and perseverance represented the pulse of a nation ready for the future.

She explained that over the past three months, they had refined business ideas spanning agriculture, climate resilience, health, mining and digital services, the very sectors at the centre of Botswana’s development vision.

Of the 31, 16 founders took to the stage to pitch their ventures, each embodying the promise of a new Botswana to a panel of judges and potential investors, offering innovative solutions in areas of bioscience, smart agriculture and public transportation.

Demo Day, a platform designed to showcase Botswana’s emerging startups and innovative thinkers, was held as a national milestone in promoting a digitally enabled, export-driven and economically diversified future. BOPA

PRESS RELEASE

APPOINTMENT OF PRESIDENTIAL ADVISORS

The Office of the President wishes to address recent public commentary regarding the appointment of Mr Motlatsi Molapisi as the President’s Political Advisor.

The public is reminded that the appointment of Presidential Advisors is a standard and long-standing practice in democratic governance. Presidents across administrations appoint advisors to support them in areas of strategic and national importance.

Historically, such appointments have been made at various times and under different titles, depending on the needs of the Presidency. The work of the State Presidency is broad and complex, and from time to time the President requires specialised expertise to enhance policy execution and strategic decision-making.

Importantly, the current administration has reduced the number of Presidential Advisor positions from six (6) to three (3), demonstrating Government’s commitment to efficiency and cost-effectiveness. The positions that remain, including Mr Molapisi’s, are retained solely to strengthen the President’s delivery capacity and ensure responsive governance.

To achieve the vision of a New Botswana, as outlined by the Umbrella for Democratic Change (UDC), the country must deepen good governance, maintain political stability, and uphold the rule of law. Mr Molapisi brings extensive political experience and institutional knowledge, making him well-suited to support Government in advancing these priorities.

It is important to note that all civil servants appointed under the Public Service Act are required to remain apolitical. For this reason, political advisory services are provided through consultancy arrangements, not through the civil service. Mr Molapisi has therefore been engaged as a consultant, at a cost significantly lower than that of a full-time internal advisor.

The Office of the President wishes to reassure the public that the engagement of Mr Molapisi is lawful, transparent, and in full compliance with established government procedures.

Government remains focused on promoting policies and decisions that advance the national interest and the collective good of Botswana.

‘Consultation, transparency key in house allocations’

By Chendzimu Manyepedza

SELEBI PHIKWE - The allocation process of 1 226 BCL mine houses will be handled through the Bonno National Housing Programme under the Ministry of Water and Human Settlements.

The houses were purchased from the liquidator by government with the intention of allocating them to some of the mine former employees.

Addressing former BCL mine employees, Botswana Mine Workers Union representatives, political and administrative leadership in Selebi Phikwe on Tuesday, Minister for State President, Mr Moeti Mohwasa said allocation would involve collaboration with relevant stakeholders.

“The government recognises the hardships that BCL former employees have faced since the mine closure. All relevant stakeholders must work together strategically to find solutions that address the impacts experienced by these former employees,” said Mr Mohwasa.

The Minister reiterated government’s commitment to addressing these challenges and creating a supportive environment to ensure stability and dignity for the former workers.

Member of Parliament for Selebi Phikwe West, Mr Reuben Kaizer highlighted the critical importance of engaging in thorough consultations with all relevant stakeholders regarding the matters affecting former employees of BCL.

He underscored that a collaborative approach would not only ensure that the voices of the former employees were heard, but would also lead to well-informed and impactful decisions that prioritised the wellbeing and interests of the affected workforce.

Mr David Lesejane, a member of the BCL/Tati Task Force, said BCL mine had 3 746 houses and government only managed to purchase 1 226, hence he called for transparency regarding the fate of the remaining houses.

He also called for fair distribution of the houses as all the former employees were equally affected.

Botswana Mine Workers Union president, Mr Joseph Tsimako, expressed appreciation for the decision to allocate houses through the Bonno National Housing Programme.

He said thorough assessment must be conducted to determine who would benefit from the housing scheme.

He also pointed out the need for re-evaluation and renovation of the houses, as many were roofed with asbestos, which posed a health risk.

Leseding Ward councillor, Ms Phemelo Nthwane also commended steps taken to help restore the dignity and stability of former BCL employees.

She acknowledged the perseverance and resilience of the former employees throughout their challenging journey.

One of the former BCL employees, Mr Tlhotlhetso Majawe appreciated all efforts taken to address challenges faced by the former employees. BOPA

Butale appreciates GEF support

By Portia Ikgopoleng

KASANE - Acting Minister of Environment and Tourism has expressed appreciation for support the Global Environment Facility (GEF) provides to Botswana to achieve environmental sustainability goals.

Delivering a keynote address at the replenishment meeting of the Global Environment Facility (GEF) in Kasane on Wednesday, Dr Phenyio Butale said since the first funding cycle of GEF, Botswana had benefitted a total of US$50.8 million in grants.

He explained that GEF resources had helped the tone for some policies and investments of public resources to align with the global commitments Botswana made through multilateral environmental agreements.

“In the performance of our global duty, Botswana has continued to ensure effective governance and legislative instruments and maintain high standards in the sustainable management of biodiversity rich ecosystems such as the Okavango Delta, the Makgadikgadi Wetlands system and Chobe,” he said.

He indicated that Botswana, as a grassland country, invested in protection and rehabilitation of rangelands as a cornerstone of the agricultural sector.

Furthermore, he said rangelands were an important ecosystem as a habitat for biodiversity and also as a carbon sink.

“This meeting signals GEF’s commitment to ensuring that it remains a strong and effective mechanism for financing environmental action across the world especially in the communities that needed it most,” he said.

For his part, GEF chief executive officer, Mr Carlos Rodriguez applauded Botswana for mobilising domestic resources effectively more than any other country for environment sustainability.

He said the organisation played a huge role in facilitating conservation strategies across the globe. Mr Rodriguez said GEF was established to address global environmental challenge, which included biodiversity loss, climate change and pollution.

He added that they had funded marine conservation to prevent ecological damage from economic activities.

“It is fitting to hold this meeting in Kasane, which is part of the Kavango Zambezi (KAZA) Transfrontier Conservation Area where multiple projects are funded by GEF in forest management, wildlife conservation and capacity building,” he said.

He said they supported natural resources management by funding projects that promoted biodiversity and sustainable development.

Currently, he said GEF constituted 187 countries who worked together to strive for international environmental goals. biodiversity and sustainable development. BOPA

‘Judiciary not immune to predatory non-state actors’

By Bonang Masolotat

GABORONE - The judiciary is not immune to the predatory interests of non-state actors and thus must guard against all forms of pressure.

President Advocate Duma Boko said this during the Southern and Eastern Africa Chief Justices’ Forum annual conference and general meeting in Gaborone on Wednesday.

President Boko said to safeguard the rule of law, discourse on judicial independence was often framed in a binary manner, with the judiciary on one hand and the state on the other.

He argued that such was not a true reflection of what constituted judicial interference.

“There are many interests in society in any given country, some of which are predatory and dangerous,” he said.

He also urged participants to examine judicial independence by analysing the relationship between the judiciary, the state and other actors.

He noted that notions of criminal syndicates and cartels infiltrating the state, including the judiciary, should not be negated.

Regarding the accountability of the judiciary, he explained that although court sittings were open to the public, including the media, the judiciary also accounted for its actions through the judgments it handed down.

He emphasised the importance of the judiciary explaining itself and its reasoning so that people could understand its decisions.

“If people do not understand us, they come to certain conclusions, become frustrated and angry at us and we become irrelevant,” President Boko said.

The President warned that when such happened, the rule of law was undermined as people lost faith and confidence in the law itself and viewed it as an instrument of oppression and marginalisation.

For his part, Chief Justice Gaolapelwe Ketlogetswe stated that judicial independence was a key component of a democratic society. Justice Ketlogetswe emphasised that the judiciary would always play its oversight role while being mindful of government, which was another branch responsible for providing essential services to the people.

“As judiciary leaders, we also recognise the value of working with other judiciaries in the future,” he said.

He further noted that the conference provided a platform for judicial leaders from Southern and Eastern Africa to reflect, share insights and best practices to enhance judicial independence and come up with mechanisms and recommendations aimed at fostering judicial accountability.

Southern and Eastern Africa Chief Justices Forum chairperson and eSwatini Chief Justice Bheki Maphalala, said Africa was poverty-stricken despite being endowed with natural resources that benefitted its former colonial masters.

Justice Maphalala said there was need for Africa to change its development trajectory and thus called on the United Nations Security Council to reform and recognise Africa’s need for a permanent seat.

He stated that the Security Council had failed to maintain world peace.

The conference, which runs until tomorrow, is themed: Judicial Independence and Accountability in Safeguarding the Rule of Law, and is attended by jurists and academics from 16 countries. BOPA

‘Space Science careers way to go’

By Booster Mogapi

GABANE - Gabane Junior Secondary School learners have been encouraged to study Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics (STEM) subjects, which will give them an opportunity to pursue careers in Space Science. Speaking during the commemoration of the World Space Day: Botswana Space Science in Gabane on Monday, Professor Motsoptse Modisi of the Botswana International University of Science and Technology (BIUST) said the world was going digital hence learners should pursue courses that explored space technology. He further said BIUST had been set up for the purpose of enhancing science and technology innovation. Prof. Modisi, who is the president of the Astronomical Society of Botswana (ASB), said one of their objectives was to reach out to learners across the country and stimulate their interest in STEM subjects. He said ASB focused on among others, stimulating wider interest in and awareness of Astronomy. Prof. Modisi further said Astronomy was a natural science that studies celestial objects such as planets, moons, stars, galaxies and numerous other objects. He said space technology was a field where young people must be encouraged to venture into, hence engaging in outreach programmes targeting schools. Prof. Modisi said it was important to develop desired skills and grow Space-related professions. University of Botswana’s Senior Lecturer, Environmental Quality, Dr Pulane Koosaletse-Mswela said the theme: Focus on Africa: Space Science and Technology for Future Development challenged them to look beyond the skies and imagine the opportunities that lied ahead for Botswana’s youth. When sharing on the FAST4Future Project, Dr Koosaletse-Mswela said the initiative, which was funded by the Erasmus+ Capacity Building in Higher Education Programme of the European Union, brought together 66 team members across the 13 higher education institutions in Africa and beyond, working through seven coordinated work packages. “At its heart, FAST4Future is about building capacity, innovation and inclusion in Space Science and technology through collaborative research, teaching and outreach. We aim to ensure that no learner, no teacher and no nation is left behind in this new frontier,” she said. Dr Koosaletse-Mswela said the event was not just a celebration of science but a call for action, therefore saying Gabane learners’ curiosity was their greatest telescope and they should keep looking up, asking questions and learning as there was no limitation to what they could achieve. BIUST Director of Outreach and Engagement, Dr Haniso Motlhabane said it was necessary to engage learners and teachers on the importance of taking advantage of the space technology to pursue different professions. “We are in the era of the 4th industrial revolution where almost everything is done using technology and people now are accustomed to acquiring services in the digital space.” As such, he said BIUST saw it fit to come up with a strategy to stimulate interest among learners, as the country wanted to enhance development through technology. He added that catching them young remained an important step in giving them direction to shape a better future. Dr Motlhabane said the idea was to attract learners that were bold enough to undertake research and science missions, be inquisitive and explored objects in space. BOPA

District leadership welcomes National Health Insurance

Goitsemodimo Williams - Madzonga

TUTUME - Tutume local authority leadership has welcomed the proposed National Health Insurance (NHI) policy. The consensus follows a briefing by Senior Consultant on NHI, Ms Lydia Sejo-Andries at a special council meeting on Tuesday. Ms Sejo-Andries said the team was working on developing NHI policy aimed at achieving universal health coverage by making health care more accessible and affordable to every Motswana and residents despite their background. Currently, she said they were on a consultation drive across the country, engaging members of the public. Ms Sejo-Andries added that the goal was to improve financial protection while at the same time strengthening health care regulations that would enable Batswana to access health services from both the public and private institutions. Over recent years, she said there had been an outcry from the public that they were not getting proper health services from public facilities. Furthermore, she pointed out that public and private health institutions would be accredited to ensure provision of quality health services. Meanwhile, Tutume District Council chairperson, Mr Tabona Masole welcomed the initiative, saying it was government’s priority to improve the livelihoods of Batswana. Mr Masole noted that if the implementation was done properly, public complaints would be a thing of the past. Representative of Tutume District at Ntlo ya Dikgosi, Kgosi Wanda Ndadi said there should be close monitoring of the funds to curb mismanagement. He added that maintenance of health facilities should be prioritised and be fully equipped to reduce costly referral to specialists outside the country. BOPA

Walk proceeds to benefit less priviledged

By Kelebogile Taolo

FRANCISTOWN - The City of Francistown mayor will, on October 25, host a charity walk as part of efforts aimed at significantly improving public health, enhancing human dignity and promoting both social and economic development for residents. Addressing a press conference on Tuesday, the city mayor, Mr Gaone Majere said proceeds from the initiative would benefit the less privileged in Francistown by funding the construction of waterborne toilet systems in the city. Mr Majere explained that providing such essential facilities was a direct way to promote good hygiene and empower individuals within Francistown’s three constituencies. He indicated that preparations for the event, which promised to be a fun-filled day of walking, networking and community building, were progressing well. He said the walk, which was held annually and organised by the City of Francistown Council, was expected to attract 3 000 participants and would feature various categories including 5km, 10km and 21km. He added that all routes were designed to pass through Francistown’s heritage sites, including Nyangabgwe Hill and Ntshe River. The event would be held under the theme: Walk for Humanity, Know Your City, thus residents and visitors are encouraged to reconnect with the country’s second city while fostering a sense of unity and promoting a healthy and active lifestyle. Furthermore, the mayor confirmed that several partners, among others Thapama Hotel, FCTVE, The Voice, Petrol Hyper and Jacaranda School, had come on board to ensure the success of the day through pledges. The day’s activities would also include a Family Fun Day, followed by an After Party hosted at Cresta Thapama, where different artistes are scheduled to perform. BOPA

Breast cancer survivor shares journey of hope

By Bakang Wren

GABORONE - The month of October which has come to be known as a pink month, is a period for breast cancer awareness that brings together survivors, families, and supporters to share stories of courage and resilience. It is a time to raise awareness about the importance of prevention and routine screening for the early diagnosis of breast cancer.

Ms Pako Molosiwa aged 42, a breast cancer survivor whose journey of strength continues to inspire many, understands its significance better than most people.

She was diagnosed with Stage 3A breast cancer in February 2020, on her right breast and later underwent surgery, followed by eight cycles of chemotherapy, another 17 cycles, and 16 sessions of radiation therapy, completing her treatment in 2021.

"I was not that sickly or troubled during treatment. I exercised and kept my faith," she said in an interview.

"A person struggling with a diagnosis needs to accept the situation in order to take treatment well," Ms Molosiwa added.

She made it a point to ask her doctors questions throughout her treatment journey, to inform herself.

"Cancers are not the same and are not treated the same. I wanted to understand why I had to go through 17 cycles of chemotherapy while others didn't. I did my research and learnt that cancer can come back," she said.

It turned out that Ms Molosiwa's curiosity was in fact an intuition to plan ahead because her cancer returned in 2024.

She did not allow herself to lose hope when she learnt of her cancer recurrence.

"Even when I was told it had come back I said, I will fight until the end," said Ms Molosiwa.

She continues to fight and had completed another round of treatment last year.

Her recovery has been gradual, an experience that has motivated her to raise awareness and support others facing similar battles.

The knowledge she has acquired is not hers alone because she often shares her journey during corporate events and community gatherings, to help others understand the importance of awareness.

"Even outside Gaborone, there are other support groups. We meet every October to commemorate and support one another," she said.

This year's gathering was held on October 4 in Palapye, bringing together survivors and supporters from across the country.

Every chance I get, I encourage people and tell them that losing a breast is not the end, Ms Molosiwa said, giving herself as an example.

She said it was not easy to tell that she only had one breast just by looking at her.

Self-care she said was important hence encouraged women to check their breasts regularly, and to go for mammograms because early detection could save lives.

Ms Molosiwa, who began her treatment at Princess Marina Hospital, commended the Government of Botswana for its continued efforts in improving cancer care and providing treatment services.

Hers is a message of acceptance and resilience which she shares on social media platforms, to inspire others and give them hope, even in the face of adversity. BOPA

This year marks the fourth edition of Ms Mpinie Olopeng's annual Breast Cancer Walk with Camping, an initiative dedicated to raising awareness, promoting early screening and providing emotional as well as material support to those affected by cancer. Olopeng champions breast cancer awareness in memory of late mother

By Lesedi Thatayamodimo

GABORONE - For Ms Mpinie Olopeng of Palapye, breast cancer awareness is more than just a campaign, it is a personal mission fueled by love, loss and a deep desire to help others.

Ms Olopeng lost her mother to cancer in 2015, just three months after she was diagnosed. The late detection still weighs heavily on her heart.

"Had it been found earlier, my mother would probably be alive today, watching her suffer in those final days made it impossible for me to sit back and pretend nothing happened," she shared.

Now, 10 years on, Ms Olopeng has turned her pain into purpose.

This year marks the fourth year she has organised a breast cancer walk with camping, an initiative aimed at spreading awareness, encouraging early screening, and offering emotional and material support to those battling cancer.

She explained that each year, Mpinie's walk gathers supporters from all walks of life.

Along the route, she collects donations, primarily toiletries and hygiene essentials, which she delivers to cancer patients receiving palliative care, in partnership with the local DHMT office.

"Cancer patients need extra hygiene care, for instance, when a breast is removed, there may be bleeding that requires daily sheet changes and clean environments," she explained.

By focusing on practical needs, Ms Olopeng ensures her support goes beyond words, directly easing the burden on patients and their caregivers.

Driven by a dream to reach every corner of Botswana, Ms Olopeng takes the walk to a different village each year.

"The year before last we were in Kanye, last year in Mogobane, and this year I have chosen a new location," she said.

Her mobile awareness campaign not only highlights the importance of regular check-ups but also builds a sense of community among those affected by cancer. She emphasised that no one should walk their cancer journey alone.

"It's been 10 years since my mother passed, but I still feel connected to her. Through this love, I want to remind Batswana that love and support go a long way," said Ms Olopeng.

Ms Olopeng urged everyone, especially women to take breast cancer seriously.

"We must check ourselves regularly and go for screenings. If cancer is found early, it can be treated, but if ignored, it can take lives, as it did my mother's," said Ms Olopeng

With October marking Breast Cancer Awareness Month, Ms Olopeng's message resonates deeply that early detection saves lives, and collective action can make a difference.

She will be having her annual Mpinie's Breast Cancer awareness walk combined with camping at Mogobane over the weekend starting October 10 to 12, where together with her over the border counterparts such as Gasegonyana Taung, Ditsamaanaga and Take a Hike from South Africa will host education and encouragement to survivors and the sick. BOPA

Mine taps into EVM market

By Thandy Tebogo

KANYE - Success of Kgwakgwe Hill Battery Grade Managanese project is set to position the nation well and tap into the highly lucrative Electronic Vehicle market.

Acting director of Mines at the Department of Mines Mr Kenalemang Charles revealed this when briefing Kanye district leadership recently.

Mr Charles indicated that this was due to an increase in electric vehicle production in the automotive industry as part of a global move towards decarbonisation and electrification.

He stated that Menzi Battery Metals, a subsidiary of Giyani Metals had recently been awarded a mining license to mine manganese at Kgwakgwe Hill near Kanye.

The mining license he said, was for a period of 15 years commencing from July 30, 2024 to August 29, 2039.

Mr Charles said Giyani Metals had developed a bespoke process that could produce high-purity managanese sulphate monohydrate (HPMSM) directly from the high grade Kgwakgwe Hill managanese oxide (MnO).

HPMSM is a refined precursor material used to produce cathode powders for lithium-ion batteries for use in electric vehicles.

The project has a demo plant in Johannesburg, intended to derisk the construction of the full scale commercial plant. Menzi Battery Metals project development is anticipated to commence early 2026, with full production in 2028.

Mr Charles stated that the construction phase looked at employing approximately 300 people whereas the production operation compliment was expected to drop to around 150 employees as most of the process was automated.

The aim he said was to mine and produce batteries locally as a move to create job opportunities.

At the current moment the project employed 17 people, who are all Batswana. Out of the total, seven are permanent employees and 10 sub-contractor owners.

He indicated 20 per cent of the total workforce were women adding that the majority of the subcontractors' total workforce was from within Kanye catchment area.

During comments, Councillor Tebogo Thebeyame of Lodubeng wanted to know if they had quantified materials produced and batteries made as much as profit made at the demo plant.

He also asked if the company had been given a waiver from paying tax locally and expressed concern that the country had lost a lot on issues of exploration.

Therefore, he requested an update on the amount that Botswana had been paid in terms of royalties and tax since the commencement of the demo plant in Johannesburg, South Africa.

Furthermore, he requested an update on plans made to relocate people residing in the peripheries of the mine arguing that the economic factor was crucial but human life was much more important.

Councillor Mothibinyane Kelesitse of Marapalalo Ward asked if it was not costly to transport materials from Botswana to South Africa.

Kgwakgwe Hill Battery Grade Manganese project's success is expected to position Botswana to tap into the highly lucrative electric vehicle market. Acting director of Mines at the Department of Mines, Mr Kenalemang Charles briefed Kanye District leadership that the development was driven by the global increase in electric vehicle production.

Councillor Kelesitse also wanted to know if they could be allowed to access the impact assessment report as councillors.

Moreover, Councillor Themba Stimela of Molapowabojang West asked if there was any assurance that the demo plant in South Africa would cease operations once the local plant start operations.

In response Mr Charles stated that royalties should be paid in terms of the Minerals Act, indicating that they would be paid looking at the value derived.

He also indicated that the Environmental Impact Assessment had been done, saying it was now a public document. In addition, he noted that consultations with all stakeholders were complete.

Mr Charles stated that the company had already started filing returns emphasising that all companies awarded a mining license were expected to file monthly returns. BOPA

Land foundation of economic growth-Dikoloti

By Kelebogile Taolo

FRANCISTOWN - Land is the foundation of human identity, the bedrock of economic activities as well as the provider of livelihoods.

This was said by Acting Minister of Lands and Agriculture, Dr Edwin Dikoloti, at the official opening of the 2025 National Land Pitso held in Francistown on Wednesday.

Dr Dikoloti said every sector from agriculture, tourism, infrastructure, mining and commerce depended on how effectively land was planned, allocated and used.

"As our population grows and development pressures increase, the need to manage land efficiently, equitably, sustainably and ethically has never been more agent than now," he said.

He added that as the administration and management of tribal land was moved from dikgosi to landboards, the selection and appointments of members had over the years changed to the current arrangements. In that regard, he emphasised that the Pitso therefore offered an opportunity to reflect on those changes in a bid to transform land administration to attain inclusive growth quality lives while building a deep economy that was beneficial to citizens. Furthermore, Dr Dikoloti highlighted the importance of agriculture, saying it remained a cornerstone of food security, yet its potential was often constrained by fragmented land holdings, underutilisation of allocated ranches and ploughing field as well as aging farming population.

"Despite these challenges, government prioritised agricultural sector to transform the economy of the country," he said. In addition, the acting minister called for a shift of lenses towards agriculture as the engine of growth, hence improved access to land for farming activities and enhanced land use planning to promote optimal use of land as they were key reforms.

Dr Dikoloti also noted while there was a legitimate call to expedite land allocation, there had to be a move from land possession to productivity and every hectare of agricultural land must contribute to the national goal of food security and sovereignty.

Moreover, Dr Dikoloti pointed out that the Land Pitso came at a critical point where the nation was faced with economic challenges, therefore the theme, Shifting Lenses; Land for Economic Transformation, called for new pathways for the land sector to contribute meaningfully towards economic revival and transformation.

He said the theme connected well with critical reforms introduced in land management especially registration of customary grants, which through Secure Land Tenure (SLT) was expected to unlock economical potential of the rural land masses.

On the SLT, Dr Dikoloti said its implementation had not progressed as expected given that issuance of SLT was at a mere two per cent.

He therefore highlighted the need for urgent action to improve the process of land registration and issuance of titles.

Meanwhile, the inaugural two-day National Land Pitso is expected to create a platform for social dialogues with the intention to provide a bridge for collaboration between government, private sector and communities and a space of advocacy to influence reforms that strengthen land governance and equitable access.

The Pitso, which began on October 8, had gathered various stakeholders including ministers, dikgosi, land board chairpersons and the private sector, among others. BOPA

Gaseitsewe trial set for next year

By Thandy Tebogo

KANYE - Kanye Senior Magistrate Keneilwe Kgoadi has set May 5 to 7, 2026 as trial dates for the case in which Bangwaketse royal family member, Metlhaeno Gaseitsewe is facing charges of undermining the powers of Kgosi Malope II by allegedly stating that he has no royal blood.

Magistrate Kgoadi said the trial would be held in three consecutive days because there were many witnesses. She, however, indicated that the trial dates would be confirmed on March 12.

Gaseitsewe has since pleaded not guilty to the charge of undermining the powers of Kgosi Malope.

He stands accused of stating that Kgosi Malope II had no royal blood, neither did he possess the intellect to be called a leader, as well as referring to him as a commoner without any lawful excuse. BOPA

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC

Notice issued in terms of Section 10 (2) of the Environmental Assessment (EA) Act’ Cap 65:07)

NOTIFICATION FOR PUBLIC REVIEW OF THE ENVIRONMENTAL IMPACT ASSESSMENT FOR THE PROPOSED GRAVEL MINING AT TOROMOJA BY CHINA CIVIL ENGINEERING CONSTRUCTION BOTSWANA.

The major findings of the Environmental Impact Assessment undertaken by Enviro Networks (Pty) Ltd for the proposed gravel mining project are summarized hereunder:

Nature and magnitude of the study.

The project proponent China Civil Engineering Construction Botswana intends to mine gravel in Toromoja. The project entails extraction of gravel to be used in construction projects around the areas.

Rationale of the project

The operation of the gravel mining project will increase the supply of gravel in the area.

Location of project activity

The proposed project site is located in Toromoja.

Anticipated environmental impacts and proposed mitigation measures

The environmental impacts and mitigation measures for the project are summarized below and presented in detail in the Environmental Impact Statement (EIS).

Project phase	Impacts	Mitigation measures/Enhancement
Pre-construction phase	Air Pollution	Provide workers with dust masks Regularly service machinery and vehicles Regularly suppress dust by sprinkling water
	Noise Pollution	• Supply workers with ear plugs/ muffs
	Soil erosion	The proponent should only clear the license area
	Land pollution	Provide waste receptacles on site. Waste receptacles available on site should be emptied regularly to avoid overflow of waste.
	Boost to the local economy	• Sourcing of goods locally where possible • Employment of the local people
	Increased employment opportunities	• There should be transparency at recruiting stages. • Labour should be sourced locally as much as possible.
Operation phase	Increase in air pollution due to dust generation	• Water must be sprinkled on site to wet the surface before excavation works. Workers must be provided with nose masks while working on site to protect them from dust emissions as per the code of ethics.
	Soil erosion	Pits must be properly backfilled to stabilize the soils in order to reduce effects of soil erosion.
	Increase in ambient noise levels	• Workers must be provided with noise protection gear such as ear muffs/ear plugs. • The contractor should ensure that all machinery and equipment are well maintained/serviced in order to reduce the magnitude of noise level they generate during operation.
	Increase in road traffic accidents	• Drivers must be sensitized to obey road traffic signs and speed limits.
	Land pollution due to waste generation	• The waste receptacles available on site should be emptied regularly to avoid overflow of waste.
	Water resources contamination	• Machinery and vehicles used on site should be well maintained and serviced to prevent the occurrence of leaks and contamination of underground water
	Soil contamination	• Machinery and vehicles used on site should be well maintained and serviced regularly. • An impermeable membrane mat must be placed under the vehicles that undergoes emergency maintenance on site.
	Occupational hazards due to illnesses and	• Workers on site must be provided with personal protective clothing.
	Loss of livestock due to accidental fatalities	• The proposed gravel mining area must be kept in a manner that does not compromise the safety of livestock
	Increase in air pollution levels due to Dust particles (emission)	• The workers on site must be protected against the dust by wearing nose masks as per construction code of ethics. Excessive dust must be suppressed by sprinkling of water around project site.
Decommissioning /rehabilitation phase	Habitat for water borne disease due to stagnant water in the pits	• All deep excavations must be rehabilitated to prevent the occurrence of stagnant water that could pose risks to animals.
	Land pollution due to waste generation	• Waste receptacles should be placed at strategic positions to avoid scattering of waste around the site and an arrangement should be made for waste generated to be collected

Conclusions

The conclusion from the findings of the EIS study is that the benefits of implementing the project outweighs the negative impacts. The implementation of the project will provide a licensed aggregate source and create employment opportunities for Batswana.

Recommendation

Following the undertaking of the Environmental Impacts Statement study, it is recommended that the project be allowed to proceed with due implementation of all the mitigation measures in the EIS Study.

Environmental Impact Statement placement

Copies of the Environmental Impact Statement have been placed at Department of Environmental Protection (Serowe) and Toromoja Kgotla for review by the public.

Correspondences

Written comments or objections from those likely to be affected by the project and other interested parties should be submitted to: The District Environmental Coordinator, Department of Environmental Protection, Private Bag 0028, Serowe and Telephone No. 4630174, Fax No. 4635937 or hand-delivered to Department of Environmental protection in Serowe, before 24th October 2025.

Mabifhi in US for dance competition

By Ketshepile More

GABORONE - Malebogo ‘Lebo M’ Mabifhi is in Los Angeles, United States of America for the Redbull Dance Your Style World Final, following her impressive win in Botswana on August.

The 28 year old has joined other dancers from over 50 countries around the world who have convened in L.A ahead of the finals scheduled for tomorrow. Their activities for the week included workshops, open jams.

The main event which is the final competition will see 16 of the world’s best street dancers battle in an all-styles competition, with the audience deciding the winner.

“It is a great experience for me, having interacted with amazing and talented dancers from around the world. I am nervous, anxious and excited at the same time. But I do not want to overwhelm myself with other people’s abilities and capabilities, I just want to be myself and with God by my side I truly believe I am capable of doing anything,” said Mabifhi in an interview.

She said most importantly, she would use the experience to learn more about dance and understand other people’s perspectives of dance from different countries.

Also, Mabifhi said it was important to understand art and dance from various people’s point of view. BOPA

Young creator pushes boundaries, earns recognition

By Benita Magopane

GABORONE - Taboka Tshane’s animé Legend of the Cursed Knight has earned international recognition at the World University Animation Awards (WUAA) in Hong Kong after it won the prestigious Rainbow Horizon Award. Japan, the birthplace of animé, continues to inspire young creators like 19 year-old Tshane, whose production marks a breakthrough for Botswana’s emerging animation industry.

Set in a fictional Botswana known as the Kingdom of Crimson, the fantasy-adventure-comedy series follows Setso, an 18 year-old who dreams of becoming a Royal Knight Captain like her father but harbours a dark secret that threatens her goal.

With the help of her friends Yuki and Thato, Setso takes on dangerous missions, battling savage monsters, capturing cold-hearted criminals, and even joining dance battles. Their strength comes from Aura, a supernatural power system unique to each character. Setso wields a pink aura, Yuki a blue one, and Thato an orange.

The story balances light-hearted fun with deeper, thought-provoking themes. Like Setso, Yuki, an orphan from the fictional Land of Blossom, inspired by Japan, faces her own inner struggles. The heroes not only fight doom-born creatures but also confront their internal monsters, drawing viewers into an emotional journey.

The show’s charm lies in its expressive animation, exaggerated eyes, dynamic gestures, and lively facial reactions. In episode five, The Third Member, small details like sweat drops, wavy mouths, and dramatic expressions capture classic animé humour and tension, showcasing Taboka’s growing artistic skill.

Tshane explained that the title reflected identity and struggle. Setso is a Setswana name meaning legacy while The Cursed Knight refers to the dark secret the heroine carries on her quest to become a Royal Knight Captain.

He said the goal of the series is to deliver thrilling fight scenes, strong character moments, and plenty of laughs.

“I want people to fall in love with the characters and relate to them. But essentially, I want it to be a show that people can just sit down, watch, and enjoy,” he said, adding that he hoped Legend of the Cursed Knight would one day grow into a brand with its own merchandise.

For now, the question still remains. Will Setso realise her dream? BOPA

Official highlights disparities in rewards

By Anastacia Sibanda

GABORONE - Botswana Paralympic team manager, Monty Ratlou has voiced concerns over disparities in how athletes participating in the World Paralympic Athletics Championships and the World Athletics Championships are rewarded.

Speaking during the Paralympics team’s celebratory luncheon on Wednesday in Gaborone, Ratlou pointed out that these were two separate entities with different reward structures.

While athletes at the World Athletics Championships are often rewarded generously, those competing in the Paralympics do not receive the same level of recognition and financial incentives.

Ratlou noted that international competitions were a vital source of income for athletes, but the reward systems at the world governing bodies remain unequal.

“A gold medalist at the World Athletics Championships is rewarded for their hard work, but the same cannot be said for the Paralympics,” he stated.

“Our athletes are mainly driven by patriotism because mainstream sports often benefit from sponsorships and endorsements, and coaches also gain from these. Unfortunately, this is not the case in para sport,” he said.

Botswana National Sport

Council (BNSC) Chairperson Marumo Morule reassured that the team would receive incentives comparable to those at the World Athletics Championships, in accordance with the country’s incentive policy.

“Under this policy, medalists will be rewarded accordingly: Bose Mokgwathi, who won a bronze medal, will receive P75,000, while Gloria Majaga and Edwin Masuge, who reached the finals, will each receive P20,000,” he said.

Morule also expressed gratitude to government for enabling the BNSC to provide these incentives.

“We hope that as the economy improves, obtaining more funds from the government will become easier, allowing us to motivate our athletes further,” he said.

Team Botswana recently competed at the World Paralympic Athletics championships in India. BOPA

Ghana thrashes Central African Republic in FIFA World Cup qualifier

ACCRA - Ghana moved one step closer to qualifying for the 2026 FIFA World Cup after defeating the Central African Republic (CAR) 5-0 in their qualifier in Morocco on Wednesday.

Ghana broke the deadlock after 20 minutes when defender Mohammed Salisu rose highest to head home Mohammed Kudus’s corner, with the scoreline 1-0 at halftime.

After the break, Ghana continued their dominance and scored four more times through Thomas Partey in the 52nd minute, Alexander Djiku in the 69th minute, and captain Jordan Ayew and substitute Kamaldeen Sulemana in the 71st and 87th minutes, respectively.

The win leaves Ghana top of Group I with 22 points and a goal difference of 16 after nine matches, with Madagascar occupying second position with 19 points and a goal difference of eight. Mali, Comoros and the CAR follow with 15, 15 and five points respectively, while Chad sits bottom of the group with one point.

Ghana will play its final qualifier against Comoros at the Accra Sports Stadium on Sunday, where a draw will confirm the Black Stars’ place at the 2026 FIFA World Cup in the United States, Mexico and Canada. Xinhua

Fierce competition for BNOC top positions

By Anastacia Sibanda

GABORONE - The stage is for a tight race for the Botswana National Olympic Committee (BNOC) leadership for the 2025-2029 board term. This follows BNOC's announcement of the full slate of candidates who will contest the upcoming Quadrennial General Assembly elections scheduled for October 25. The competition would be particularly fierce for the presidency, which had drawn three contenders including the current BNOC senior vice-president, Tshepo Sitale who would face off against Ookeditse Malesu and current board member, Yarona Sharp. The race for the senior vice-president position has pitted current first vice-president, Michael Moroka against the Botswana Wrestling Federation (BWF) president, Moagi Sharp. The first vice-president position would see a three-way battle between Botswana Tennis Association (BAA) president, Oaitse Thipe, former Botswana Rugby Union (BRU) president, Bob Lekang as well as and current board member, Tebo Segaise. For second vice-president, Botswana Cycling Association (BCA) representative, Game Mompe would vie with current board member, Unaswi Matebu. In an interview, the incumbent president, Botsang Tshenyego, said he would not be seeking a third term citing a desire to promote good governance. "I have no pressure from any quarters or the BNOC constitution because it is silent but at the IOC is three terms, so for me it was just a principle just to observe the norm of two terms," Tshenyego said. Tshenyego first ascended to the BNOC presidency in 2017, having previously served as senior vice president since July 2009. He noted that he was not leaving the sport space entirely, given that he remained engaged at international level. On one hand, five candidates, Boikobo Gaolebalwe, Kebalebile Ramontsho, Ndibo Lebala, Ofentse Bakwadi and Taolo Tlouetsile, would compete for the three available slots as additional members. Meanwhile, a press release from the BNOC confirmed that the Nominations, Elections Committee (NEC) chairperson and the BNOC Chief Executive Officer have complied with the constitutional requirements for the election.

Article 12 (7) of the BNOC Constitution mandates that valid nominations must be confirmed in writing to all full members at least 15 days prior to the General Assembly, a provision that the release says has been duly met. The release further says the BNOC remains committed to upholding transparency, fairness and integrity in the electoral process as it prepares for the upcoming Quadrennial General Assembly and appreciates the continued support and cooperation of all members and stakeholders.
