Murmu hails Botswana dedication to peace

By Bonang Masolotatse

GABORONE - Botswana stands tall in its commitment to peace, stability, and inclusive development, says the President of India, Ms Droupadi Murmu. President Murmu said when addressing Members of Parliament Wednesday at the National Assembly Chamber on Wednesday.

“The National Assembly of the Republic of Botswana is the temple of democracy of your proud nation,” she said, adding that the country’s remarkable progress from modest beginnings to a modern, confident, and prosperous society was a blessing to everyone.

She said the country was a shining example of democracy, good governance, and effective leadership.

President Murmu said that India and Botswana shared a natural friendship built on mutual trust and respect, shared values, and a common belief in democracy and human dignity.

«It is a friendship that has been built not with words and promises, but on the bedrock of hard work, dedication, and people-oriented delivery,» said President Murmu.

Over the decades, partnerships between the two countries had not only been reinforced by past collaboration but also by the promise of a bright future, she said.

President Murmu noted that it was an honor for India to have been an early partner in Botswana’s nation-building journey.

The two nations’ cooperation has expanded across many sectors, including education, health, technology, agriculture, defense, trade, and investment.

President Murmu said India was proud of the ongoing partnership in capacity building and human resource development.

In the last decade alone, she said more than 1 000 young Batswana have studied and trained in India, returning home with new skills, expanded knowledge, and lasting friendships.

President Murmu hailed the people-to-people connections between the two countries, as the real strength and driver of their enduring ties of friendship and cooperation.

She said democracies needed to be sensitive to the dreams and aspirations of their people, especially the expectations of their youth.

“To achieve this, there is a need to ensure robust and durable economic growth and harness new opportunities to benefit people,” she said.

President Murmu said India companies were active in Botswana’s diamond, energy, and infrastructure sectors and noted that there was immense hope for collaboration in renewable energy, digital innovation, pharmaceuticals, and mining.

She emphasised the need for business communities from both countries to work together to harness the full potential of their economic partnership. This would be in consonance with Botswana’s Vision 2036 initiative, she said.

“India is the fastest-growing major economy in the world, driven by structural reforms, digital transformation, expanding infrastructure, and a youthful workforce,” President Murmu said.

She said the government of India aimed to transform the country into a fully developed, inclusive, and resilient nation by the centenary of its independence, emphasising innovation-led industrialisation, clean energy transition, global competitiveness, and equitable prosperity.

India and Botswana can contribute meaningfully to a fairer and more sustainable world order, she said and thanked Botswana for the support of India’s efforts for a reformed and expanded UN Security Council.

The role of Africa cannot be overstated, as it is the continent of the future. With its youthful demographics and vast natural resources, the continent can fuel the growth of the global economy.

The collaboration between India and African countries can help unlock the energies of our 2.8 billion people, which is 40 per cent of the world’s population,» she said.

President Murmu said India was firmly committed to prospering across sectors and sharing its development experience with Botswana.

Leader of the House and Minister for State President, Mr Moeti Mohwasa, viewed President Murmu’s visit as a demonstration of an enduring friendship and strategic partnership between the two nations, built on mutual respect, shared values, and common aspirations of democracy, development, and human dignity.

“The visit is evidence of India’s unwavering commitment to international cooperation, good governance, and human progress,” he said.

Mr Mohwasa noted that the visit underscored the importance of collaboration across multiple sectors.

Leader of the Opposition, Mr Dumelang Saleshando, on the other hand, said the visit by President Murmu gave hope to the girl child who aspired to be in leadership positions. BOPA

‘Increase women representation in Parliament’

By Pako Lebanna

GABORONE - Botswana, a country held in reverence globally as a virtuous exemplar of democracy on the African continent, should work on increasing female representation in Parliament to further cement its democratic credentials.

The President of India, Ms Droupadi Murmu expressed the views while paying a courtesy call on the Speaker of the National Assembly, Mr Dithapelo Keorapetse in Gaborone on Wednesday.

Upon learning that only six members, the deputy speaker, four cabinet ministers and one opposition legislator, constituted the female contingent of Botswana’s 69-member National Assembly, Ms Murmu called for the country to think of measures to increase their representation.

Welcoming Ms Murmu, Mr Keorapetse concurred that Botswana needed to work on strengthening the representation of women in the parliamentary chambers.

He said the country’s first past the post electoral process, had not made it easy for affirmative action measures to increase female and youth representation.

Nonetheless, he said the country could assess how to improve the political representation to more adequately reflect the nation’s demographics.

Mr Keorapetse said after the 2024 general elections which ushered in the 13th Parliament, there had been a high turnover of representatives, with 60 per cent of Members Parliament (MPs) being first time legislators, who required training on legislative and oversight parliamentary committee functions.

To that end, Mr Keorapetse said, after a courtesy call to his office by Indian High Commissioner, Ambassador Bharath Kuthati, earlier this year, a discussion had commenced about the Botswana Parliament exploring training and benchmarking for MPs and parliamentary staff at India’s upper and lower chambers of Parliament as well as regional assemblies.

“Our two countries have excellent relations that have existed for nearly 60 years now and they will be further cemented by this, the first visit by an Indian head of state to Botswana, a woman who will inspire our young female population to aspire to leadership,” Mr Keorapetse said.

In her visit to Parliament, Ms Murmu was accompanied by the Union Minister of State for Railways, Mr Veeranna Somanna and two Indian MPs. BOPA

India resilience impresses Boko

By Lesedi Thatayamodimo

GABORONE - President Advocate Duma Boko has called for stronger economic and technological collaboration between Botswana and India. Speaking at a state banquet in honour of India President

Droupadi Murmu in Gaborone on Wednesday, President Boko emphasised the opportunities for partnership in industrial development, information technology and the diamond sector. He urged Indian financial institutions to explore innovative financing mechanisms to support Botswana's diamond trading, polishing and jewellery manufacturing industries and sectors central to the nation's economy. "The highest amount of money to be made in the diamond business lies in financing and value addition," he said, calling for 'outside-the-box thinking' and cooperation with Indian firms renowned for their expertise. President Boko also invited Indian professionals to establish training and operations in Botswana.

"We want some of those cutters and polishers to come here, to set up here, to transmit and share their skills, these are unique skills and the world recognises Indian craftsmanship," he said.

Acknowledging India's remarkable progress in digital transformation and poverty alleviation, President Boko said Botswana desired to learn from India's innovations in delivering government services to vast populations.

"Our aim is to know the best that is known in any setting and contribute to the world's storehouse of knowledge," he said.

He further praised India's remarkable resilience and economic achievements, which had propelled it to become one of the world's largest economies.

Meanwhile, President Boko commended President Murmu for her historic first state visit to Botswana, describing it as a milestone in the nearly six-decade-long diplomatic relations between the two nations.

He highlighted that the visit ushered in a new era of cooperation, saying, "it is a moment of profound significance because we elevate the relationship to the highest level now, we bring our peoples closer, we cement this longstanding relationship and we appreciate your blessing with assistance that India has rendered to us over the years."

President Boko noted that Botswana and India had enjoyed firm foundation of friendship, mutual respect and shared vision to improve the quality of life of people.

He also lauded President Murmu's lifelong commitment to education, health, gender equity, culture and language.

"It is fitting that such a personality occupies the high office of President of a Republic of 1.4 billion people, a huge achievement and a great responsibility," he said.

For her part, President Murmu praised Botswana's remarkable journey since gaining independence in 1966, commending the nation for building one of Africa's most stable democracies.

"The people and leadership of Botswana, with a profound spirit of resilience and unity, have taken their nation to revolutionary heights," she said.

President Murmu also applauded Botswana's prudent leadership and its emergence as a beacon of hope for other developing nations, acknowledging the country's success in governance, social cohesion and forward-looking development strategies.

She expressed India's keen interest in supporting Botswana's post-colonial economic transformation programme, which aimed to reduce dependence on traditional sectors and foster a diversified, knowledge-driven economy, emphasising on key areas of collaboration, including capacity building, technology exchange, digital innovation and infrastructure development.

President Murmu further highlighted opportunities for cooperation in solar energy, grid modernisation, mining, agriculture, manufacturing and tourism areas aligned with Botswana's drive toward a more diversified economic model.

In addition to economic cooperation, both leaders reaffirmed the importance of people-to-people ties and committed to expanding academic exchanges, cultural programmes and tourism initiatives that promoted greater mutual understanding.

The banquet was attended by former president, Dr Festus Mogae and wife Barbara, former vice president, Mr Slumber Tsogwane, cabinet ministers and members of the Indian diaspora in Botswana. BOPA

Botswana donates cheetahs to India

By Baleseng Batlotleng

MOKOLODI - President Advocate Duma Boko has handed over eight cheetahs to President Droupadi Murmu of India, to mark another step in strengthening the existing ties and deepening cooperation in wildlife management between the two nations.

Speaking at a brief handover ceremony at the Mokolodi Nature Reserve yesterday, President Boko said the symbolic donation also addressed human and wildlife conflict in Botswana as some of the animals were in danger of being killed within local communities.

The President said their translocation ensured protection and survival and was also seen as a notable contribution to global efforts to preserve endangered species. For his part, Minister of Environment and Tourism, Mr Wynter Mmolotsi, said the gesture would unlock opportunities for Batswana, particularly in areas of tourism and ecosystem management.

Minister Mmolotsi said Botswana advocated for the sustainable use of wildlife resources and was a leader in biodiversity development and would continue to do so. "The donation would go a long way in showing a shared commitment in developing different wildlife species between the two countries," he said. Department of Wildlife and National Parks director, Mr Moemi Batshabang said Botswana remained a stronghold of the cheetah population globally, estimated at 1 700 individuals, approximately 24 per cent of the world population.

The world population of cheetahs is estimated at just over 7 100, representing a 40 per cent decline over the last 40 years owing to a number of reasons including human wildlife conflict, among others.

Mr Batshabang said they were confident that the translocation of the eight would not have a negative effect on the conservation of the species in the country.

He noted that the eight animals, consisting of two families of a mother and three cubs each, were captured and rescued as problem animals.

Mr Batshabang added that Botswana had taken note of the progress made by the project cheetah in India and were convinced that the translocation of the eight would benefit the species conservation through development and exchange of expertise and sharing of best practices in wildlife management.

The captured animals, originally from Ghanzi area, were released into a quarantine facility by experts at the Mokolodi Nature Reserve undergoing a few logistics for some time before being translocated to India to assist in the regeneration of cheetah population.

Project Cheetah is a unique initiative aimed at reintroducing cheetahs to India, decades after their extinction.

Majority of cheetahs translocated there are reportedly adapting well to their new environment and exhibiting natural behaviours such as hunting and mating. BOPA

Govt makes strides in transforming tourism

By Bonang Masolotat

GABORONE - Botswana's tourism sector is undergoing transformation, to be people-centric, says the Minister of Environment and Tourism, Mr Wynter Mmolotsi.

The minister, who is also the MP for Francistown South, made the statement in Parliament on Wednesday during the debate on the State-of-the-Nation Address (SONA).

For instance, he said it took the government less than four months to open Chobe National Park, to allow passage through the park after 6pm, a decision that had been in the making since 1967.

Mr Mmolotsi said that the Chobe community had, over the years, lobbied the previous government and their representatives to have the park opened, as they could not access even health facilities after hours. He said the development showed that government cared for the well-being of communities.

Also, he said after realising that communities in Chobe and North West were not adequately benefiting from their concessions, the government came up with the Community-Based Natural Resources Management law, to ensure that such communities benefited and were empowered.

This decision, he said, had brought hope to communities since they were now benefiting from their natural resources.

Also, he said Parliament had allowed for eco-tourism projects in the forest reserves, which had been laying idle in Chobe and North West, adding that such projects would be run by Batswana.

Minister Mmolotsi further said there were issues of non-renewal of concession leases for businesses operating in Chobe and North West, leading to some businesses relocating, but the government had stepped in to address the problem.

The Ministry of Environment and Tourism recently launched city tourism in order to diversify the tourism product across all parts of the country, Minister Mmolotsi said. He said all efforts done thus far would ensure that tourism contributed more to the country's economy as well as creating much-needed jobs.

Mr Mmolotsi said the economy was currently not doing well, which affected the implementation of some of the promises made by the UDC government, but assured the nation that the promises made by the UDC would be fulfilled.

He said that upon taking power, the UDC was faced with stabilising the economy and giving investors confidence.

Serowe West MP, Mr Onalepelo Kedikilwe, said he was impressed with the SONA as presented by President Advocate Duma Boko, as it pointed to the country's true north. However, he said as the government lured investors to the country, it was important to also invest in the local communities to ensure that employment opportunities were availed to rural communities. For instance, he said there was plenty of land that could be used by investors in the Serowe constituencies.

Mr Kedikilwe said it was not ideal for investors to be based in towns, as that disadvantaged those living in rural areas. Also, he said that the contribution of the agriculture sector to the economy was insignificant at two per cent, hence efforts for the sector to do more were noble. By contributing just two per cent to the Gross Domestic Products (GDP), the agriculture sector has almost collapsed, hence the need to revitalise it, Mr Kedikilwe said.

He welcomed the idea of increasing milk production in the country as that would benefit local economies. He also talked about the need to address shortage of medicines in public hospitals. health facilities. BOPA

Minister of Environment and Tourism, Mr Wynter Mmolotsi said after realising that communities in Chobe and North West were not adequately benefiting from their concessions, the government came up with the Community-Based Natural Resources Management law, to empower those communities.

Explore unconventional approaches - Saleshando

By Pako Lebanna

GABORONE - Botswana's current economic situation requires government to think outside the box and speedily implement policies that could transition the nation's fortunes and transform people's lives, Leader of the Opposition, Mr Dumelang Saleshando has said.

Speaking at the National Assembly on Wednesday, in his response to the State-of-the-Nation Address (SONA) that had been presented by President Advocate Duma Boko on Monday, Mr Saleshando said government should work on innovative solutions since the nation was faced with a myriad of challenges.

In response to the health situation, Mr Saleshando said Botswana should come up with a national workforce strategy to recruit and retain health workers and give incentives for them to work in rural areas.

He called on government to work on cost cutting measures, proposing the lessening presidential external trips, reducing the size of the Cabinet, and spending less on state-led public events to better manage public funds.

Mr Saleshando further said the legislative framework should be reformed to enable Parliament to become independent from the executive and better execute its oversight role. While in agreement with government on private sector growth, Mr Saleshando said he was worried that in the relentless pursuit of Foreign Direct Investment (FDI), Botswana could attract investors who implemented poor labour practices.

Also, he was critical of the proposed citizenship by investment initiative, lamenting that offering Botswana citizenship to global investors in exchange for payment could run the risk of luring criminal elements attempting 'state capture.'

Mr Saleshando said Batswana were currently disillusioned, worried about lack of medication in public health facilities, high unemployment levels, low wages, workplace retrenchments, lack of access to land and home ownership opportunities as well as a generally depressed economy.

He said government should expedite the implementation and legislation of a P4 000 living wage, which he said should be the bare minimum basic salary of the lowest earning employee, instead of it being the culmination of the basic salary and benefits.

As part of empowering citizens and encouraging their participation in the tourism sector, Mr Saleshando proposed the development of a citizen tourism development fund. He further said the National Internship and Apprenticeship Programme needed to be transformed towards ensuring young graduates to be absorbed into full employment, and for the Youth Development Fund to be similarly reviewed.

Furthermore, Mr Saleshando said the country's foreign missions should be delegated to assist Batswana gain business and job opportunities across the world including in multilateral organisations.

He said within the next 12 months, the Botswana Congress Party

In his response to the State-of-the-Nation Address, Leader of the Opposition Mr Dumelang Saleshando said government should come up with a national workforce strategy to recruit and retain health workers and give them incentives to work in rural areas.

(BCP) would bring to Parliament a motion on a comprehensive constitutional review.

Mr Saleshando said the Umbrella Democratic Change should avoid the mistakes made by their predecessors in government, the Botswana Democratic Party and for them to implement their manifesto. BOPA

VAT Amendment Bill consultations on

GABORONE - Vice President also Minister of Finance, Mr Ndaba Gaolathe says consultations with the Tourism Sector in the Value Added Tax (VAT) amendment bill are ongoing with a meeting scheduled for November 17.

Answering a question in Parliament on Wednesday, Mr Gaolathe said the Tourism sector had requested clarification on certain clauses in the draft Bill, particularly Part IIIA which outlined rules for remote services, a critical gap identified in the current VAT framework.

Mr Gaolathe said the provision had significant implications for the tourism sector. Accordingly, he said the ministry ensured that the tourism industry was included in the discussions as it would be directly affected by the proposed amendment.

He said the meetings between tourism operators, Botswana Unified Revenue Services (BURS), Hospitality and Tourism

Association of Botswana, Botswana Tourism Organisation, the Ministry of Finance, Office of the President and Business Botswana were being held to find an optimal solution to the issues raised by tourism operators.

He also said consultation were essential to address concerns and mitigate any unintended consequences before the Act came to effect.

The Vice President in his capacity as Minister of Finance was answering a question by Member of Parliament for Maun North, Mr Dumelang Saleshando.

Mr Saleshando had asked the minister if the recently enacted Value Added Tax Amendment Bill No. 22 of 2025 was in operation.

He said if the bill was in operation, the minister was to further disclose if any key sector of the economy had made presentations to him on possible adverse impacts of the new law on their operations and how such concerns had been addressed. BOPA

Mogapi shares views on SONA

By Marvin Motlhabane

GABORONE - Former journalist and communications consultant, Mr Spencer Mogapi, has emphasised the need for government to strengthen its communication strategies.

In an interview post President Advocate Duma Boko's State-of-the-Nation Address Mr Mogapi said it was critical for the administration to take control of its messaging and deliver clear, consistent narratives directly to the public.

Mr Mogapi observed that although the country's economic performance had been below expectations over the past year, there were positive developments that deserved greater visibility. Among these, he cited the government's investments in green energy projects, many of which were yet to be publicised.

He said President Boko sought to instill hope among citizens amid economic challenges, presenting a vision for recovery. He particularly pointed out the revitalisation of the agricultural sector, which he identified as a key revenue source following the decline in diamond industry's profitability.

Mr Mogapi also said the president's plan to increase the national cattle herd was a vital initiative for strengthening Botswana's agricultural sector.

He also commended improvements in payment turnaround times at the Botswana Meat Commission (BMC), which he stated had dropped to a week.

He argued that this could encourage farmers to return to BMC instead of selling to butcheries and feedlots, which had previously been preferred due to delayed payments.

However, he warned that BMC must continue to reduce payment delays to regain farmers' trust and business. Turning to dairy production, Mr Mogapi welcomed government's plan to import 1 000 Gilorando cattle from Brazil to boost milk production and promote skills transfer. He stressed the need for adequate land allocation to committed farmers to ensure sustainable practices, rather than continued reliance on subsidies that had yielded limited economic benefits.

Regarding the HEMP production initiative scheduled to begin in December, Mr Mogapi acknowledged public skepticism over its success.

Nonetheless, he appreciated that the required policies and land allocations had been finalised to support its launch.

On the mining front, Mr Mogapi highlighted President Boko's interest in increasing Botswana's stake in De Beers from 15 to 35 per cent, describing it as a strategic move to enhance the country's control over diamond marketing and production.

He further praised government's fiscal management efforts, noting a reduction in budget deficits due to spending control measures introduced by the Minister of Finance.

These adjustments, he said, demonstrated a shift toward improved financial discipline.

He said while there were significant positive moves and initiatives by government, the effectiveness of its communication strategy appears to hinder public awareness and engagement. Bridging this gap, he said, would be essential to rebuild trust and strengthen citizen engagement.

'Partial pensions withdrawal strives for balance'

GABORONE - Any consideration of allowing partial access to pension funds during active service needs to balance the need for short-term financial relief with the long-term goal of ensuring adequate retirement income, says Minister of Finance, Mr Ndaba Gaolathe.

Mr Gaolathe was responding to a question from the Member of Parliament for Molepolole North, Mr Arafat Khan. Mr Gaolathe said the current framework was primarily designed to promote long-term savings and financial security after retirement.

However, he said the ministry had noted developments in neighbouring countries, including the introduction of the 'two pot' retirement system in South Africa. He said government had not implemented a similar model, however a consultancy on the Botswana Pension System was undertaken through the Non-Bank Financial Institutions Regulatory Authority (NBFIRA) in 2023; which assessed the effectiveness and adequacy of the Botswana pension system, to inform government's response to public calls for withdrawal flexibility especially from active pension members.

Mr Gaolathe said the study confirmed that the existing regulatory framework was effective in regulating the pensions sector.

While partial withdrawals could provide relief in times of financial hardships, Mr Gaolathe said they might also reduce retirement income if not carefully managed. He said the ministry acknowledged that some public officers experienced financial distress during their service years, and that a well-designed and regulated system that allowed limited withdrawals could offer relief while maintaining the integrity of retirement savings. However, such reforms must be informed by robust actuarial assessments, sound policy design and broad stakeholder consultations to mitigate potential fiscal or social risks. Furthermore, he said government had observed declining life expectancy; but said the core objective of pension schemes was to ensure post-retirement income security and dignity.

He also added that with early retirement incentives, the Directorate of Public Service Management would continuously explore various human resource strategies to rejuvenate the public workforce as a measure to address youth unemployment.

Government, Mr Gaolathe said continuously reviewed policies governing pension administration to ensure that they remained responsive to the evolving socio-economic environment.

He said the ministry remained committed to ensuring that Botswana's pension system was sustainable, equitable and responsive to both the needs of public officers and the broader macroeconomic realities.

He said ongoing consultations and studies would inform any future policy proposals, and that any proposal in this regard would be developed in consultation with relevant ministries, unions and pension administrators to ensure fiscal sustainability and equity.

Mr Khan had asked the minister if they had ever considered allowing public officers to access a portion of their pension fund while still in active service.

He said the reforms would allow fund members to make partial withdrawals from their retirement savings before retirement, while preserving a portion strictly for post-retirement use.

He said the reform could enable public officers to continue saving for the long-term while offering flexibility to address financial distress during their service years.

AOJ assesses magistracy structure

GABORONE - The Administration of Justice (AOJ) is currently looking into, and assessing the restructuring of the Magistracy in Botswana, to do away with issues related to limited jurisdiction of magistrates.

The Minister of Justice and Correctional Services, Mr Nelson Ramaotwana, said this in response to a question from the Member of Parliament for Maun East, Mr Goretetse Kekgonagile.

He assured that once the process was completed, it would help eliminate delays and backlog in the justice delivery system.

He explained the ministry's plan for the process, with government support, to be in place by the second quarter of the next financial year.

Mr Ramaotwana said a full complement of four magistrates was needed to adequately deliver justice to the people in Maun.

He also noted that Maun Magistrates Court should be operating with four magistrates, however, since 2017 it had been operating with three and two magistrates at different times.

"We currently have 18 prosecutors in Maun," said Mr Ramaotwana adding that the court turn around times for criminal cases were 24 months and 18 months for civil cases.

However, he noted that because of manpower shortages, the times of disposal of cases had increased with a criminal case taking an average of 36 months and civil matters 24 months on average.

He admitted that the staff shortages were not unique to Maun but across all courts in the country owing to the expansion and growth of the Administration of Justice without increase in resources both human and capital.

Thus, he added, it was important to consider adequately increasing the staff complement of the Administration of Justice.

Mr Kekgonagile wanted the minister to brief the Parliament on plans to deal with extreme staff shortage in his ministry especially at the Judicial Services and Directorate of Public Prosecutions, in particular: the number of magistrates and prosecutors in Maun versus adequate numbers needed to operate the two institutions in Maun, the trial turn around and case disposal period at Maun Magistrate Court.

He also wanted specific plans and timelines in place to fill the posts to facilitate speedy disposal of cases.

Relations key to diamonds advocacy

By Lorato Gaofise

GABORONE - Botswana advocates for natural diamonds and has embarked in a robust campaign focused on differentiating, defending and reclaiming the value the country's natural diamonds to safeguard against their waning demand.

Speaking during Diamond Trading Company Botswana (DTCB) tour by the President of India, Ms Droupadi Murmu on Wednesday, the Minister of Minerals and Energy, Ms Bogolo Kenewendo said the relationship that Botswana had with India was critical to the agenda and the success of the differentiation and defense campaign that the country had put forward. Through the campaign, Botswana aims to protect and promote the premium value of natural diamonds in the face of growing competition from lab-grown or synthetic diamonds. Additionally, the campaign is also meant to build a unique narrative and value proposition around the country's natural diamonds, with emphasis on aspects like; ethical sourcing, traceability and local beneficiation, among others.

"At the heart of that is DTCB, because this is where you find the sorting of our diamonds and we are able to sell to both the Okavango Diamond Company (ODC) and De Beers Global Sightholder Sales from this very place, where then we see our diamonds ending up in all of the diamond players around the world," said minister Kenewendo.

For that reason, the minister expressed gratitude for hosting President Murmu and her delegation at the DTCB's state-of-the-art building, describing the building as Botswana's diamond trading hub. The DTCB building, the minister said was a sustainable building, which represented all thopes, dreams and impact of the diamond industry. Further, Ms Kenewendo explained that the primary mandate of DTCB, which is a 50/50 joint-venture between Botswana and the De Beers Group, was to accurately sort and assesses the value and quality of each rough diamond mined locally by the Debswana Diamond Company before sale and allocation. She expressed delight that the ODC had started its model of contract sales, which featured a number of Indian businesses.

This, she said was yet another clear sign that the two countries were both partners in the diamond industry. "We look forward to our continued partnership to strengthen it, unlock financing opportunities and share innovations that are associated with it."

During her three-day State Visit, President Murmu visited the Three Dikgosi Monument, addressed the Botswana National Assembly and paid a visit to Mokolodi Nature Reserve.

The DTCB tour was also graced by the Minister for International Relations, Dr Phenyio Butale and DTCB managing director, Mr Sedireng Serumola, among other dignitaries. BOPA

Chinese firms confidence in EU hits six-year low

BRUSSELS - Confidence among Chinese companies operating in the European Union has fallen to a six-year low amid political headwinds and rising costs, said a report on Wednesday.

Chinese firms rated the EU business environment at 61 out of 100 in 2025, down from 73 in 2019, according to a report released by the China Chamber of Commerce to the EU and Roland Berger, a consultancy.

"Some 81 per cent of respondents cited greater uncertainty, pointing to the politicisation of commercial issues and a dense rollout of new rules that was described as a "compliance maze," said the report.

Rising labour costs and political headwinds are creating "dual pressures" for Chinese enterprises in the EU, with labour costs now seen as the top challenge, followed by geopolitical complexity and shifting EU and member-state policies toward China, according to the report.

It says over 40 per cent of respondents said they had faced differential treatment linked to their Chinese identity, including longer approvals, fewer subsidy opportunities and limited dialogue with authorities. The data also shows that nearly 90 per cent of companies said the EU's "de-risking" and broader economic security agenda had negatively affected operations through tighter investment screening, higher market-entry barriers, and greater policy uncertainty, it said.

Despite the weaker sentiment, the performance of Chinese companies showed resilience. In 2024, 53 per cent of surveyed companies reported higher revenues, and 40 per cent said profits rose.

Nearly 3 000 Chinese-invested companies operated across all 27 member states by end-2024, employing more than 260 000 local staff, the report sated.

As the EU's Economic Security Strategy advances, Chinese companies face multiple hurdles, such as rising market access barriers, escalating compliance costs and increasingly complex review procedures," said Commerce Chairman Liu Jiandong in the report. Liu said China-EU economic relations were evolving from "complementary interdependence" to "strategic co-shaping," calling for "rules-based dialogue" and practical cooperation in the green transition and advanced manufacturing.

The report, drawing on four months of surveys and interviews with 205 Chinese companies and organisations, sets out 336 recommendations to foster a more open and predictable market and strengthen China-EU cooperation. Xinhua

South Africa sets new inflation target at 3 per cent

CAPE TOWN - South African Finance Minister Enoch Godongwana has announced a new inflation target of three per cent, with a one-percentage-point tolerance band.

Delivering the Medium-Term Budget Policy Statement in Parliament on Wednesday, Godongwana said the tolerance band provided flexibility to accommodate any unexpected inflationary shocks.

"This decision follows agreement between the Governor of the South African Reserve Bank and my consultations with the President and Cabinet. This new target immediately replaces the previous target range of between three per cent and six per cent and will be implemented over the next two years," the minister said.

Godongwana said the short-term fiscal costs of a lower target -- which include lower nominal gross domestic product (GDP) and revenue growth -- would make achieving fiscal targets more challenging. "Yet the long-term benefits of taking this step far outweigh these costs. We remain committed to ensuring that our macroeconomic policies serve the best interests of all South Africans," he said.

Godongwana said the South African government was also on track to stabilize debt.

"Government debt will stabilise in 2025/26, at 77.9 per cent of GDP. This is the first time since the 2008 financial crisis that public debt will not grow as a percentage of GDP," he said.

Meanwhile, the minister noted that South Africa's economic prospects were also shaped by global developments, with the delayed effects of the unilateral tariffs imposed by the United States, coupled with rising protectionism, posing future risks to global productivity and price stability.

"Domestically, we forecast real GDP growth of 1.2 per cent for 2025, more than double the economic growth in 2024," said Godongwana, adding that the real GDP growth was expected to average 1.8 per cent between 2026 and 2028. According to Godongwana, the structural reforms that South Africa had embarked on, particularly in energy and logistics, would be key to lifting its rate of growth closer to levels demanded by developmental needs. Xinhua

Rescued women receive counselling

By Taboka Ngwako

GABORONE - The Botswana Police Service have confirmed that the three women who recently escaped falling victim to a suspected human trafficking syndicate in South Africa have been repatriated to Botswana and were receiving counselling and psychological support at a safe house.

The three were rescued at O.R. Tambo International Airport in Johannesburg, South Africa over the weekend.

According to BPS spokesperson Assistant Commissioner Near Bagali, on November 6, a case of suspected human trafficking was reported at the Selebi Phikwe Police Station involving a 20-year-old woman whose parents said she had claimed to have found employment in the United Kingdom.

“The following day, two missing person reports were filed, which were later linked to the same suspected trafficking network,” he said.

The women, aged between 20 and 23, were reportedly lured through social media platforms with promises of lucrative job opportunities in Sierra Leone.

The syndicate’s planned travel route was to take them from Botswana through South Africa and Nairobi before reaching their final destination.

According to media reports, suspicious travel patterns alerted airport authorities, prompting an investigation that exposed the trafficking attempt.

The swift coordination between the South African Police Service, INTERPOL, the Botswana Police Service and the Botswana High Commission in Pretoria led to the women being intercepted and safely removed from the situation before boarding their connecting flight.

Mr Bagali further revealed that investigations were ongoing to trace the recruiters behind the scheme, who were believed to operate across borders using social media to lure unsuspecting job seekers.

Mr Bagali credited the strong cooperation between Botswana and South African law enforcement agencies for the timely interception of the women at O.R. Tambo and their safe return home.

He also urged the public, particularly young people seeking employment abroad, to verify all job offers through legitimate channels and to avoid sharing travel documents or personal details with unverified individuals.

Namibia to double creative sector contribution

WINDHOEK - Namibia president Netumbo Nandi-Ndaitwah on Thursday pledged to double the creative sector’s contribution to the country’s gross domestic product (GDP) from 1.5 per cent to 3 per cent within the next five years.

Nandi-Ndaitwah made the pledge during the 26th Bank of Namibia Annual Symposium, held under the theme: Unleashing the Power of the Creative Industries: A Catalyst for Economic Development in Namibia. In a statement delivered on her behalf in Windhoek, the president said Namibia’s future would not be determined by its underground resources, but by the creativity and innovation of its people.

“For too long, Namibia’s economy has relied on a narrow base, mining, fisheries, and agriculture. These sectors do not have enough jobs, enough inclusion, or enough resilience,” she said, adding that Namibia must shift from being merely resource-rich to becoming an architect of relevance in a world that rewards creativity and intellect.

The creative economy, which includes film, music, fashion, design, gaming, and digital content, is one of the world’s fastest-growing sectors, generating over US$2.3 trillion annually and contributing over 3 per cent to global GDP, she noted.

“Namibia, with its youthful, connected, and tech-savvy population, has all the ingredients to lead this transformation if we create the right conditions for our people to thrive,” she said.

To capitalise on this global trend, she said the government had made the creative industries a core pillar of its Sixth National Development Plan. She also called on the Ministry of Information and Communication Technology to fast-track the development of a distinctive national brand, leveraging the country’s existing global recognition as a filming destination for productions such as Mad Max: Fury Road and The Mummy. Nandi-Ndaitwah, meanwhile, encouraged the youth to transition from being consumers of global content to producers of uniquely Namibian stories, products, and ideas, emphasizing that their creativity is an economic force. President Murmu historic visit in pictures

India President Droupadi Murmu has concluded a three-day state visit to Botswana, which she had embarked on, at the invitation of President Advocate Duma Boko. During her visit, President Murmu held bilateral talks with President Boko and addressed Parliament, reaffirming India's commitment to strengthening cooperation with Botswana. The India head of state also toured Diamond Trading Company Botswana. She further visited Mokolodi Nature Reserve, where eight cheetahs were donated to India as part of a wildlife conservation partnership between the two nations. Before her departure, President Murmu paid courtesy calls on Vice President Ndaba Gaolathe and Minister for International Relations, Dr Phenyo Butale. The state visit sought to deepen the long-standing bilateral relations between Botswana and India, with discussions focusing on expanding cooperation in health, education, agriculture, mining, trade and investment. The two countries established diplomatic relations in 1966 and continue to enjoy cordial ties marked by mutual respect and collaboration across various sectors.

PUBLIC NOTICE

Notice issued in terms of Section 10 (2) of the Environmental Assessment Act (Cap 65:07)

NOTIFICATION FOR PUBLIC REVIEW OF AN ENVIRONMENTAL IMPACT STATEMENT (EIS) FOR THE PROPOSED INDUSTRIAL MINERALS EXTRACTION (GRANITE AND DOLERITE) IN MALEGARE LANDS, NEAR DINOKWE VILLAGE IN MAHALAPYE DISTRICT BY STOP & FIX SUPPLIES (PTY) LTD

The major findings of an Environmental Impact Assessment (EIA) Study undertaken for the proposed industrial minerals extraction are summarised hereunder.

(i) Nature and Magnitude of the Activity
Stop & Fix Supplies (Pty) Ltd has made an application with intention to exploit industrial minerals (granite and dolerite) in Malegare, near Dinokwe Village in the Mahalapye District. The site is approximately 9.932 km from the main Kgotla of Dinokwe village The overall area (footprint) for the proposed quarry-stone measures approximately 200.79 km2. as per approved Prospecting Licence NO 0128/2023. Industrial minerals extraction is estimated to last for 42 years with probabilities of extension.

(ii) Rationale for the project
The material will be used for commercial (construction) purposes and supplied to the residents and other nearby villages for construction purposes.

(iii) Location of the Activity
The proposed project is located in Malegare Lands near Dinokwe Village, in the Mahalapye Sub-District. The site is approximately 9.932 km from the main Kgotla of Dinokwe village

(iv) Anticipated Environmental impacts of the Activity and proposed mitigation measures to respond to the negative environmental impact

The environmental impacts and mitigation measures identified by the EIA study are presented in detail in the Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) and summarized in the table below. A detailed Environmental Impact Assessment to help manage and monitor potential impacts is included in the EIS.

CONSTRUCTION PHASE
Environmental impact	Mitigation
Loss of vegetation	Clearing should be limited to the area required for mining activities.
	Limit quarrying to the approved 0.50 km ² area to avoid clearing excess vegetation.
Creation of access road	Limit clearance of vegetation for the access road to the proposed site
Recruitment of workers	As much as possible residents of Malegare, Dinokwe and Mahalapye District area should be considered when recruiting labour.
Reduced air quality	Workers should be provided with adequate protective clothing including nose masks Hauling trucks should be covered.
Increase in ambient noise levels	Workers should make use of hearing protectors
Waste Generation	At least one waste receptacle with a lid for each waste stream should be provided on site. At least one portable flush chemical toilet for male and female each should be provided on site on a ratio of 1: 10 at least.
OPERATION PHASE
Soil erosion	All disturbed slopes must be stabilized immediately to prevent erosion and safety risks. Excavation activities should be limited to the proposed site. Progressive rehabilitation should always be undertaken to avoid degradation.
Increase in ambient noise levels	All equipment should be maintained to ensure quieter running/operation. Speed limits of 40km/hr along the haul route should be enforced to attenuate noise from the haul vehicles that would be plying the access roads. Workers should make use of hearing protectors
Reduced air quality	Workers should be provided with adequate protective clothing including nose masks Adequate dust restraining measures including sprinkling of water should be regularly done around the mining area and along the access road. Hauling trucks should be covered.
Social conflicts	Conduct community engagement sessions and establish grievance mechanisms.
Waste generation and disposal	At least one waste receptacle with a lid for each waste stream should be provided on site. At least one portable flush chemical toilet for male and female each should be provided on site on a ratio of 1: 10 at least.
Potential soil, surface and ground water pollution	Portable spills containment and clean up equipment should be provided at the mining site. In the event of accidental spill, the contractor should expedite the clean-up of the area to prevent spread of the pollutant All fuel, lubricants and hydraulic oil should be stored in clearly marked containers with lids.
Potential archaeological finds	Prior to site preparation and excavation activities, the project archaeologist should sensitise the contractor and employees on the possibility of chance finds and educate them on what to do in the event of such sightings. In the event of any chance findings the Department of National Museum and Monuments should be informed immediately.
Slope Instability	Bench design, slope stabilization, geotechnical monitoring
Visual Intrusion	Progressive rehabilitation, vegetation buffers, aesthetic screening
Quarry Vibration	Monitoring ensures operations stay within established environmental limits to protect nearby communities and property.
	Open communication and consultation with affected communities are vital for managing expectations and ensuring acceptance of acceptable vibration levels.
Ponding	Creating ditches to direct runoff away from operational areas and building bridges over watercourses helps control water flow. Keeping quarry roads and surfaces clean removes dust and mud that would otherwise contribute to ponding and water contamination. Water collected in settlement ponds or sumps may require treatment to remove pollutants other than suspended solids before it can be safely discharged.
DECOMMISSIONING

Soil and water pollution	Proper maintenance of all equipment used during decommissioning
	All holes to be filled with soil and compacted after all has been completed
Vegetation regeneration after re-habilitation	Restoration should be done immediately after completion
Increase in ambient noise levels	All equipment should be maintained to ensure quieter running/operation. Speed limits of 40km/hr along the haul route should be enforced to attenuate noise from the haul vehicles that would be plying the access roads. Workers should make use of hearing protectors
Reduced air quality	Workers should be provided with adequate protective clothing including nose masks Adequate dust restraining measures including sprinkling of water should be regularly done around the mining area and along the access road. Hauling trucks should be covered.

(ii)Conclusions and Recommendations
The conclusion from the findings of the EIA is that the benefits of the proposed industrial minerals mining outweigh the disadvantages as the project will provide minerals for construction purposes to the residents and other surrounding areas.
Therefore, the consultant recommends that the project be allowed to proceed with appropriate implementation of the mitigation measures recommended.

(iii)Environmental Impact Statement Placement
Copies of the EIS can be reviewed at the following locations:
• Department of Environmental Protection (Serowe)
• Dinokwe main Kgotla
• Mahalapye Public Library
Written comments or objections from those likely to be affected by the project and other interested persons should be submitted to the Department of Environmental Protection

Wind power project empowers locals

CAPE TOWN - On a breezy afternoon across the arid plains of South Africa’s Northern Cape Province, 31-year-old Xolani Taute stood beneath a towering white wind turbine, its blades slicing through the blue sky above the small town of De Aar.

Once an unemployed electrician with little prospect of further study or steady work, he is now a trainee wind turbine technician -- a testament to how renewable energy is transforming local lives.

“Longyuan has changed my life in many ways,” Taute told Xinhua, his eyes lit up with excitement. “I am very proud of what Longyuan has done here in De Aar.”

Four years ago, Taute was struggling to find work until he learned about Longyuan South Africa Renewables Ltd.

Longyuan SA, a wholly owned subsidiary of China Energy Investment Group’s (CHN Energy) Longyuan Power Group Corporation, was recruiting for its De Aar Wind Power Project.

He applied and, to his surprise, was offered not just a job but a future. Longyuan SA sponsored his training at a technical college in Cape Town.

He later received hands-on training at the De Aar wind farm before joining the company in 2023 as a wind turbine technician trainee.

“They paid for my college and my accommodation, transport fee, food fee, everything,” Taute recalled.

For him, the greatest benefit to local youth like him was not simply employment but the opportunity to learn and master new technology.

“By teaching people, you are giving them that skill for renewable energy,” he said.

“It is like an advantage for them so that in the future they can get jobs.”

Completed in 2017, the De Aar Wind Power Project stands as a flagship example of China-South Africa cooperation under the Belt and Road Initiative.

With an investment of about ¥2.5 billion (about US$352 million) and a total installed capacity of 244.5 megawatts, it is the first wind project in Africa developed, built and operated by a Chinese power company, emerging as the largest operational wind farm in South Africa.

Its 163 turbines generate roughly 770 million kilowatt-hours of clean electricity each year, powering some 300 000 South African homes and easing the country’s power shortages.

Beyond delivering green energy, Longyuan SA has focused on “teaching people to fish” -- nurturing local talent, improving livelihoods and stimulating regional growth.

So far, the project has trained over 110 young technicians, with more than 80 percent of its workforce now composed of local employees, many of whom hold key operational and management positions.

“Now I am able to support my family, and my sisters and my brothers,” said Taute.

“They changed my life.” Thabiso Moleko, a deployment counselor with the De Aar Department of Employment and Labor, said that the wind power project had fostered skills development among local people.

“People now are having these skills. They are not only going to use them within their company but also with other companies.

That means more job creation in the future, and poverty is decreasing, leading to greater economic growth in South Africa, not only in the Northern Cape but across the country as well.”

Longyuan SA also runs a scholarship program worth about R4.5 million (about UD$263, 200) annually to help students from humble backgrounds pursue their education.

So far, 390 students have benefited, including 30-year-old Daswin Basson, now a senior maintenance technician at the De Aar Project.

“It gave me the opportunity to build my career and make something of my life when I had no financial means to do so. I hope that I can continue with that work and can continue to give young people the opportunity to grow and succeed,” Basson said.

During their lunch break, Taute and Basson came to a nearby sports field -- once a barren patch of dirt, now a vibrant community hub restored with funding from Longyuan SA.

“We say that ‘a child in sport is a child out of court,’ and thus it is contributing to that. Our crime has dropped, and most of our youth are enjoying this facility,” said Ronald Faul, De Aar sports facilities supervisor.

In a town with limited medical facilities, residents often spot a white mobile clinic bus making its rounds, which is another initiative by Longyuan SA.

Equipped with dental and eye-care units, the bus provides free medical services to around 9 000 residents each year and has served more than 50 000 people since its launch in 2020.

Nkulukelo Mazibuko, a 29-year-old optometrist on board, said the clinic was a lifeline for many.

“Some people, especially the old people, cannot walk to the clinic. They do not have money to go to the hospital either. When we come here, we provide service near them and it is free,” he said.

The company’s social responsibility programme also include sponsoring local old-age homes to ensure food and care for impoverished elders, building and operating early childhood centers to provide free education for hundreds of children from low-income and special-needs families, and investing millions of rand to repair the town’s water infrastructure, replacing aging pipes and cleaning reservoirs to secure safe drinking water for more than 2 000 residents. Xinhua

Okowa joins ICJ bench

NEW YORK - Kenyan jurist Phoebe Okowa was elected a judge of the International Court of Justice (ICJ) on Wednesday to fill the seat vacated by Somalia’s Abdulqawi Yusuf, who resigned effective September 30.

Okowa will serve the remainder of Yusuf’s term, which runs until February 5, 2027. She is a Kenyan lawyer and professor of public international law at Queen Mary University of London and has served as a member of the UN International Law Commission since 2023.

Under the ICJ’s Statute, judges are elected by secret ballot in both the Security Council and the General Assembly.

To be elected, a candidate must obtain an absolute majority in both chambers, which vote concurrently but separately.

There were four candidates for the post. Okowa won after three rounds of voting in the Security Council and four rounds of voting in the General Assembly.

The Hague-based ICJ has 15 judges elected to nine-year terms of office. Judges are eligible for re-election.

Should a judge die or resign during his or her term of office, a special election will be held to choose a judge to fill the unexpired part of the term.

The 15 judges must come from 15 different countries.

The court as a whole must represent the main forms of civilisation and the principal legal systems of the world. Xinhua

African countries pledge to boost medical product research

MOMBASA - African countries on Tuesday agreed to strengthen collaboration in medical product research, development and regulation to boost local manufacturing and reduce dependence on imports.

The seventh biennial Scientific Conference on Medical Products Regulation in Africa (SCoMRA VII) was held in Kenya's coastal city of Mombasa, with delegates reflecting on the growing urgency to address vulnerabilities exposed by emergencies like the Ebola outbreak and COVID-19.

John Munyu, chairperson of Kenya's Pharmacy and Poisons Board, said unlocking Africa's potential in health product manufacturing and trade is a continental priority.

"Africa imports over 90 per cent of its medicines and produces less than one percent of its vaccines.

This is not just a statistic; it reflects our dependence and vulnerability, which the COVID-19 pandemic painfully exposed," he said.

"SCoMRA VII is not merely a conference; it is a strategic platform to make this vision real to catalyse local manufacturing, support intra-African trade under the Africa Continental Free Trade Area, and ensure that quality, safe and effective medical products reach every African," he added.

African Medicines Agency (AMA)'s Director-General Delese Mimi Darko underscored the institution's commitment to supporting local pharmaceutical manufacturing across Africa.

Darko said increased regional production would improve access to safe, affordable, and high-quality medical products, while reducing dependence on imports.

Symerre Grey-Johnson, director of human capital and institutional development at the African Union Development Agency-New Partnership for Africa's Development, said Africa had made strategic moves to actualise medical product manufacturing through the establishment of the AMA.

Grey-Johnson noted that the establishment provided predictable regulatory functions and authoritative continental leadership. . Xinhua

Nearly 25 million people face acute food insecurity in DRC - UN

NEW YORK - Nearly 25 million people, over 20 per cent of the population, are facing high levels of acute food insecurity in the Democratic Republic of the Congo (DRC), a UN spokesperson said Wednesday.

The DRC remains one of the countries most affected by food insecurity, with the situation particularly severe in the east, said Stephane Dujarric, spokesperson for the UN secretary-general, at a daily briefing. According to the latest Integrated Food Security Phase Classification analysis, the number is projected to rise to nearly 27 million people in the first half of 2026, he said. Dujarric said the UN Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs (OCHA) remains deeply concerned about continued attacks against civilians in Beni and Lubero territories in North Kivu and also in Ituri province, with more than 1,000 people reportedly killed in the two provinces since the beginning of this year.

The impact on health services has been devastating, with at least six facilities attacked since the beginning of 2025 and a total of at least 28 health sites affected by armed attacks since 2024, said the spokesperson. He said OCHA reiterated its call on all parties to respect international humanitarian law and ensure the protection of civilians and civilian infrastructure.

Since January, the security situation in eastern DRC has worsened sharply amid renewed fighting involving the March 23 Movement rebel group, which seized several key towns, including Goma and Bukavu.

Humanitarian agencies say the escalating violence has displaced hundreds of thousands of civilians, deepening an already dire crisis. Xinhua

AU, UN discuss peace, security development

UNITED NATIONS - The African Union (AU) and the United Nations (UN) discussed the implementation of the cooperation frameworks between the two organizations as well as the joint action and challenges linked to peace, security, development and human rights at their ninth annual conference at the UN headquarters in New York on Wednesday.

The high-level discussions, co-chaired by Chairperson of the AU Commission Mahmoud Ali Youssouf and UN Secretary-General Antonio Guterres, also included topics such as financing for development, climate action, as well as the implementation of the African strategy for women, peace and security agenda.

"Cooperation between our organizations has never been stronger or more necessary," with the world in turmoil, rocked by deadly conflicts, widening inequalities, climate chaos and runaway technologies, Guterres told a joint press conference after the meeting.

"The impacts are felt deeply on the African continent," he said, listing three areas "where decisive action is needed" making Africa a priority, financing for development and innovation, and investing in peace.

Calling for reforming the international financial architecture so it reflects the world of today and better serves the needs of developing countries, particularly in Africa, Guterres said it must become "more inclusive, representative, equitable and effective."

The UN chief underscored that sustainable development and peace are interdependent and mutually reinforcing.

"In this respect, I wish to reaffirm my full support for the AU's Silencing the Guns initiative," he said, noting that today Africa is home to too many conflicts and too much suffering, including in Sudan, the Sahel, Mali, South Sudan, Somalia, and the Democratic Republic of the Congo. In his remarks, Youssouf said the AU-UN annual conference is a strategic platform for a periodic consultation and coordination between the two organizations. The AU and the UN have aligned their development agendas, Agenda 2063 and Agenda 2030, and the two organizations are also working closely on flagship programs of peace, he said. Youssouf noted that the AU and the UN have deployed together tremendous efforts for the adoption of the Pact of the Future last year and now the two organizations are very much involved in advancing the cause of climate justice and energy transition. The AU is also committed to working with all parties and stakeholders of the UN to achieve a transparent, equitable and just reform of the Security Council, Youssouf said. He also stated that although the two organizations are faced with financial strains, it is critical to continue to support peace operations, the fight against terrorism, as well as conflict prevention and resolution.

The first AU-UN annual conference was held in New York in April 2017, during which the two organizations signed a joint framework for an enhanced partnership in peace and security. Xinhua

Three local films score big

By Benita Magopane

GABORONE - Three local films, Route 2, Abashwe and Moporofete: The Prophet are set to debut exclusively on Mzansi Magic on Saturdays starting November 15 to 29.

The movies, produced by acclaimed Botswana filmmakers Afentse Lekolwane (Route 2), Johnson Otladisa (Abashwe), and Tumelo Chaba (Moporofete: The Prophet), mark Botswana's continued rise as a powerhouse in the film industry.

Lekolwane, best known for her sharp comedic delivery in hit series such as Beauty, is once again delivering the laughs with her latest creation, Route 2.

The film is a richly humorous and visually striking tale of survival, loneliness and the unpredictable magic of shared journeys.

It promises viewers an emotional road trip that explores how human connection often emerges from the most unexpected detours in life.

Speaking at the MultiChoice Botswana press conference, Lekolwane said: "This film is not just a story, it is about the character," highlighting that the combi and the many hilarious props in the film acted as characters themselves, giving the story a richer comedic edge.

Meanwhile, Chaba's The Prophet is set to tug at the hearts of movie fans obsessed with themes of betrayal, vengeance, and redemption.

The story follows the life of a vengeful Jacob, who creates a fake prophetic ministry to exact revenge after his father loses a million-pula property to a manipulative church, a tragedy that leads to the untimely death of both his parents.

Yet, when love unexpectedly finds him, he faces a moral crossroads between forgiveness and vengeance.

Reflecting on his journey, Chaba described the film's backstory as one of rejection and perseverance, calling Mzansi Magic's interest in his project a breakthrough moment.

"This is my 'Now I'm here' moment," he said, one he hoped to relive again next year.

For hopeless romantics, Abashwe is the film to watch.

The story follows the emotional journey of a resilient single mother who has long given up on love.

Scarred by past disappointments, she remains skeptical even when she meets a charming young executive who seems genuinely interested in her.

Otladisa expressed immense gratitude for the opportunity to showcase his film on Africa's leading storytelling platform, describing it as 'a filmmaker's dream come true'.

Meanwhile, MultiChoice Botswana managing director,

Stephanie Pillay, expressed her excitement, saying: "We are thrilled to bring these local films to our viewers. Our commitment to local content is unwavering, and we believe these films will inspire and entertain audiences of all ages."

At their core, the films celebrate Botswana's rich cultural heritage and diverse narratives while capturing compelling stories that resonate deeply with local audiences.

They also stand as bold testaments to the exceptional talent of Botswana's filmmakers and actors. BOPA

Online literature beneficial to Chinese films

BEIJING - From epic fantasy dramas featuring gods and immortals to intimate stories of urban professionals navigating careers and relationships, what appears on Chinese screens is drawing from one prolific creative well, online literature.

In an industry hungry for proven hits, adaptations of serialised web novels have become a significant force in programming.

According to industry data, more than a third of the series set for release or under production in 2025 by China's three major streaming platforms, Qiyi, Tencent Video, and Youku, are based on such digital originals.

This trend underscores a major shift in how China's entertainment industry capitalises on the country's vibrant, crowd-sourced online fiction.

For producers, the appeal is clear. These novels, often written in serial installments and honed by real-time reader feedback, arrive with a built-in audience and a pre-tested story.

"The 'co-creation' model is the unique advantage," said Jia Wenting, IP content director at Fanqie Novel, adding that a story that survived the rigorous verdict of online readers had essentially already passed a market test.

He Liang, an associate professor at the Beijing Film Academy, described the process of adaptation as a 'structural remake'.

"You are transforming a sprawling, text-based narrative, often with internal monologues and complex subplots, into a visual and emotionally immediate experience," he said.

"The rhythm changes, the focus sharpens. The goal is to capture the essence while making it work as television."

The adaptations span a wide spectrum. Heartfelt realist dramas like, Like a Flowing River, which chronicles the lives of ordinary people amid China's economic reforms, share the spotlight with lavish fantasy series like Lost You Forever, which features high-quality visual effects that build immersive mythical worlds.

A significant and profitable segment focuses on modern women's lives, with shows like Nothing But Thirty exploring themes of career, family, and self-worth, resonating deeply with female viewers. Now, Chinese screen adaptations are travelling far beyond China's borders.

A research report from the Chinese Academy of Social Sciences highlighted a fruitful year in 2024 for the global reach of these adaptations.

Joy of Life 2, a historical suspense series, was released overseas on Disney+ and became the platform's most-watched drama from the Chinese mainland.

Other series, including The Double, topped viewing charts in countries like Thailand and the Republic of Korea.

Content is the key, said Zhu Xinmei, director of the international communication institute of the development research centre under the National Radio and Television Administration.

"The growing international influence of Chinese screen series has boosted the confidence of overseas platforms in acquiring them."

The industry is also turning to technology to refine its hits.

Artificial intelligence is being used to analyze plot logic, assist in casting and set design, and even predict audience preferences, making the high-stakes process of adaptation more data-informed.

As He Hong, head of the China Writers Association's online literature center, noted, the next step is to further streamline the pipeline 'from online creation to film and television production', aiming to deepen the synergy between writers and film and TV producers and enhance the appeal and reach of China's cultural stories. Xinhua

Botswana hosts J60, ITF tournaments

By Anastacia Sibanda

GABORONE - The Botswana Tennis Association (BTA) will, in the next two weeks, host two international events as the country stages two International Tennis Federation (ITF) World Tennis Tour Juniors tournaments at the National Tennis Centre in Gaborone.

The first tournament, the J60 Gaborone, will be hosted from November 17 to 22, while the second tournament, the J100 Gaborone, will run from November 24 to 29.

BTA vice president, Nonofu Othusitse, said in an interview that the tournaments had attracted participants from countries such as Zimbabwe, Mozambique, Namibia, South Africa, Great Britain, Israel, France, Poland, Italy, India and Australia.

Othusitse said preparations for both events were being finalised and they were expecting the first wave of players starting today (Friday).

He encouraged individuals, organisations and companies to come on board and invest in this young talent.

He said that over the years, their players had proved beyond doubt that they had what it takes to take on the best in the world and therefore they only needed the opportunity and support.

During the tournaments, he said Botswana should expect to see players such as Ntungamili Raguin, Seabo Saleshando, Tinashe Phatshwane, Rethabile Moshaoa, Nina Sekonopo, Malak Macheng and Angel Chakanyuka on the court.

“Entrance to the matches is free and we would like to invite Botswana to support our young stars and witness the future champions on home soil. Matches will run from 9am up to around 4pm,” he said.

Othusitse said hosting such tournaments was critical to both national tennis development as well as individual players.

“Firstly, it offers our players an opportunity and platform to be exposed to international events at a young age, as well as gaining international points vital for their world rankings,” he said.

Furthermore, he said good results from the events contributed to improved chances of players qualifying for bigger international events such as junior Grand Slams like the Junior Australian Open and Wimbledon.

“We now have Ntungamili who looks most likely to play the Junior Australian Open next January, provided we continue to offer him the much-needed support. We are projecting that he will break into the top 200 in the world by December 2025.

This is dependent on him playing more ITF Junior events,” he said. BOPA

Battle of the titans tonight

By Anastacia Sibanda

GABORONE - A mother of all battles is expected as two Botswana Premier League giants, Gaborone United (GU) and Mochudi Centre Chiefs meet at GU Stadium this evening.

Unbeaten this season, GU are the log leaders with 25 points from nine games played; eight wins and one draw.

Mochudi Centre Chiefs on one hand are in position five with 19 points from 10 outings from which they won five games, drew four and lost one.

Although Gaborone United has proved to be a free-scoring team, may find it hard to penetrate Magosi's solid defence.

‘Swagger Boys’ almost impenetrable backline, is marshalled by defenders in Sisqo Haraseb and Thabang Khuduga.

The team will however, miss the services of Shanganani Ngada who is out on injury.

On the other hand, for them to keep GU at bay, they have to guard Mpho Kgaswane, Thabo Maponda, and Lebogang Ditsele.

Sunday Standard sport editor, Botlhale Koothopile is of the view that over the years, the encounter had been and still was a clash to look out for.

“When Chiefs started emerging as a title-winning team during the Ernest Molome and the late Clifford Mogomotsi era, it disrupted the dominance of GU and Rollers as the two powerhouses of the elite league.

Their encounter with the two teams turned into fierce rivalries, which decided the fate of the league,” he said.

As it stands, he said GU sits at the top after a seven-game winning streak while Chiefs’ prospects had been a hit and miss.

He said they won two of their last five matches, lost one and drew two and were now six points behind log leaders GU.

Koothopile said GU would clearly be seeking revenge, given that in the last game between the two, GU lost by a solitary goal, a loss that nearly derailed their title chase.

“Worse still, they were losing to Piro, a coach who left their camp mid season to join Magosi. Therefore, this will be a grudge match. However, with his (Moloi's) innate knowledge of GU, it will not be an easy game,” he said.

In other games to be played on Saturday, Morupule Wanderers will face Sua Flamingoes at Palapye Stadium.

Black Lions and Police will have a date at Royal Aria Stadium whereas Extension Gunners and Calendar Star will play at Lobatse Sports Complex.

Orapa United will host Santa Green at Itsekeng Stadium, while on Sunday a double header will be played at GU Stadium, with Matebele and Jwaneng Galaxy being first on the pitch at 4pm, followed by Township Rollers and BDF X1 at 7pm. BOPA

Gaborone United's the Red Roses face Ivory Coast's ASEC Mimosas in a do-or-die CAF Women's Champions League Group B clash on Saturday. The local side sits bottom of the group with one point after a draw with JKT Queens and a 3-0 loss to defending champions TP Mazembe. The Red Roses now look to fight their way back into contention to keep their tournament hopes alive.

GU, ASEC Mimosas in crucial clash tomorrow

By Anastacia Sibanda

GABORONE - Gaborone United ladies' team, affectionately known as the Red Roses, will face ASEC Mimosas of Ivory Coast in a crucial Group B clash of the CAF Women's Champions League at Right to Dream Stadium in Cairo, Egypt tomorrow.

The Red Roses are fighting for survival, currently sitting at the bottom of the Group B standings with just one point, following a goalless draw against JKT Queens of Tanzania and a subsequent 3-0 loss to the defending champions, TP Mazembe of Congo.

Despite their table position, Group B remains open and a victory for the Red Roses could still secure their place in the semi-finals.

At the summit of the log are ASEC Mimosas with four points, followed by TP Mazembe with three points and JKT Queens in third with two points.

In an interview, Red Roses' coach, Raizor Monene, remained steadfast that his side could pull through, stating the team had prepared well for the final and crucial group game.

Monene conceded they had hoped for a better performance against TP Mazembe, but did not come to the party in the first half.

"In all aspects of the game we were poor... We managed to address it during halftime and came out an improved side in the second half," he said.

He admitted the penalty awarded to their opponents killed their game plan of mounting a comeback.

Monene highlighted that, given the log standings, all four teams could still reach the semi-finals, saying 'we have to win to make it.' While acknowledging the match against ASEC Mimosas would not be easy, he confirmed his team's determination.

Meanwhile, the final Group B match for the Red Roses against table-toppers ASEC Mimosas is an absolute must-win for the local side to have any hope of progressing.

The game pits a resilient, yet struggling, defense-first team against the group's current pace-setters.

On one hand, ASEC Mimosas have shown efficiency and clinical finishing, demonstrated by their 1-0 win against TP Mazembe and a 1-1 draw against JKT Queens.

They are disciplined and rarely afford opponents clear-cut chances.

For the Red Roses, their challenge is significant. While their defense was organised in the opening goalless draw, it collapsed against TP Mazembe.

They therefore must revert to their tenacious COSAFA qualifying form to neutralise ASEC's scoring threats.

As debutants, they have shown tactical discipline, but their major weakness is lack of attacking output, with zero goals scored in the tournament.

To win, the Red Roses cannot rely on defense alone, they need to find an offensive spark. They would require a multi-goal victory to boost their current minus three goal difference and potentially surpass TP Mazembe and JKT Queens, assuming the result of the other Group B game leaves the door open. For ASEC Mimosas, knowing a draw guarantees their passage, would likely play a controlled game while the Red Roses must be defensively perfect and tactically ambitious in attack, a level they are yet to consistently demonstrate in this tournament. BOPA
